JUDGE KIMMEL AND 11 JURYMEN ASK PAROLE OF CONVICT

Release From Prison of John Kanupke Is Sought by Men Who Assessed Penalty.

DOG'S DEATH LED TO FEUD

He Fought Man, Was Sentenced, and Wife Lost Her Mind—7 Children Scattered.

The Board of Parole and Probation of the St. Louis Police Courts, under the leadership of Judge Karl Kimmel, has prepared a petition asking the State Board of Parole to free John Kanupke from the penitentiary, where he is serving a two and one-half year sentence for an assault on Alfred Gunners.

Investigation by parole officers has shown a chain of tragedy which has followed an apparently insignificant incident—the legal execution of a dog, the pet of Kanupke's daughter, Mamie.

Here is what the death of one little skye terrier eventually did to Kanupke: Branded him as a felon and a convict and put him behind prison walls.

Wrecked his wife's reason and made her an asylum inmate.

Scattered his family of seven children and made them dependents.

Disrupted the savings of 20 years and caused him to lose the home which he had almost paid for.

From the day, early in March, 1911, when Judge Kimmel, in the Wyoming Street Police Court, decided that the little dog must be shot, Fate camped on Kanupke's trail.

Two Men Have Fight. Kanupke and his family lived at 5309 South Thirteenth street. Gunners and his wife had a grocery half a block away. There had been a long feud between the Gunners and Kanupke families. It reached a climax when Mrs. Gunners had Kanupke arrested on the charge that he kept a vicious dog—the little skye terrier, his daughter Mamie's pet. Mrs. Gunners testified that the dog scared customers from her store.

After the dog had been put to death, the breach between the families widened until on the evening of March 13, 1911, when Gunners went to the Kanupke home after Mrs. Gunners had told him that Kanupke's son, Sylvester, had made an insulting remark to her as he passed the store.

There was a fight, in which Gunners' head was cut and his collarbone broken. Kanupke was charged with felonious assault. At the trial, Gunners testified that Kanupke struck him with a hammer after he had left the yard of the Kanupke home.

Kanupke and other witnesses testified that the fight started in the kitchen of the Kanupke home after Gunners had entered the house and asked for the boy, Sylvester.

Kanupke's defense was that he had used no hammer or other weapon, but that he grappled with Gunners when he saw a revolver in Gunners' pocket, and they rolled down a flight of steps together. He said Gunners' head was cut when it struck a stone or an iron shoe scraper at the foot of the steps.

Violent Bond, Rearrested. Kanupke fled from his appeal and was released on a bond, which required him to remain within the jurisdiction of the Missouri courts.

Ingrat of the law, Kanupke obtained employment at Herrin, Ill., and took his family there. A short time after this he returned to St. Louis and was arrested for violating the conditions of his bond. He wrote to his wife in Herrin, telling her of his arrest.

Here the hand of misfortune again fell heavily on Kanupke. On receiving her husband's letter, Mrs. Kanupke left Herrin at midnight and walked five miles to a train. This was only a week before her baby was born, and in her arms she carried a heavy 2-year-old child.

Mrs. Kanupke reached St. Louis exhausted and in a few hours she apparently lost her reason.

Physicians at the sanitarium have told Miss Moller that they believe Mrs. Kanupke might regain her mental faculties if her husband were freed and her children restored to her.

With the father in the penitentiary and the mother in an asylum, little Mamie Kanupke, 12, bravely assumed the role of "little mother" to her six brothers and sisters, but the task was a heavy one, and a month ago Mamie, whose little skye terrier started all the trouble, gave up the struggle. Now the family is scattered.

Father, Ch. J. Zielinski, pastor of St. Hedwig's Church, called for volunteers for his congregation to take care of the children. Each has been taken into a different family.

Kanupke's sentence was affirmed by the Supreme Court Feb. 19 last. Sheriff Dickman sympathized with Kanupke and permitted him to remain free until he could make some small provision for his family. Kanupke was taken to the penitentiary about two months ago.

Miss Moller, in her report of her investigations, said that Mrs. Kanupke told her that she and her husband would not have pushed the prosecution if Kanupke had agreed to pay Gunners' doctor bill of $75.

Those who are asking that Kanupke be paroled believe that the payment of this comparatively small sum might have kept him out of the penitentiary.

Eleven of the jurors who convicted Kanupke have signed the petition for his parole. The twelfth member has moved from St. Louis and cannot be

TWO SCHOOLGIRLS, 10 AND 8 YEARS, REPORTED MISSING

Florence and Lucile Hendershaw Started to Shaw School Thursday, Mother Says.

Florence and Lucile Hendershaw, respectively 10 and 8 years old, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hendershaw of 483 Arsenal street, started Thursday morning for the Shaw School, Macklin and Columbia avenues, and failed to return home.

After searching all night, the Hendershaws notified the police at 5 a. m. Friday of the disappearance of their children.

Mrs. Hendershaw told a Post-Dispatch reporter that she did not become uneasy about her daughters until about 9 o'clock Thursday night. She said that after school they often visited some of their playmates, sometimes staying for supper and not returning home until 8 o'clock in the evening or a little later.

The Hendershaws made a house-to-house canvass in the neighborhood of the school, but were unable to find a trace of the two girls. The following descriptions were given to the police: Florence Hendershaw—Brown hair, gray eyes, white dress with green stripes, tan shoes and stockings, no hat; Lucile Hendershaw—Cream-colored Norfolk suit, white crossbar messaline apron, no hat, black shoes and stockings.

In the vicinity of her home had seen a strange man loitering around the neighborhood during the last two or three weeks. He was described as wearing a dark suit, a dark soft hat, and as about 35 years old. No one saw him yesterday, Mrs. Hendershaw said, so far as she could learn.

The Hendershaws have four other children, Dorothy, 14; Robert, 6; Jesse Jr., 4; and Frank, 2 years old.

Principal Lewis M. Dougan of the Shaw School told the reporter the Hendershaw children had not been at school since last Friday, and have been dropped from the rolls. The older is in the second reader and the younger in the first, he said.

JAMES, SPEAKING FOR WILSON, CALLS FOR FREE SUGAR

Kentucky Senator Interprets Democratic Platform as Declaring in Favor of It.

TUMULTUOUS HEARS SPEECH

Contention Made That Industry, Protected 125 Years, Should Now Stand Alone.

By Associated Press. WASHINGTON, May 16.—Senator James, accredited with speaking for President Wilson and the administration, interpreted the Baltimore platform in a speech in the Senate today as committing the President and the Democratic party to free sugar. His remarks were in reply to the declarations by Senator Randall and Senator-elect Broussard of Louisiana that it did not.

In the gallery, listening closely, was Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President, who went to the Capitol to hear the reply to the anti-free sugar Democrats, who, for two days, have been assailing the sugar schedule, which President Wilson has declared will not be compromised, if he can help it.

James Cites the Platform. Senator James declared that the platform adopted at the Baltimore convention approved the course of the Democratic party in the last session of Congress and that it included the approval of the Underwood free sugar bill. He read a paragraph from the Democratic campaign text book approving "the excellent record of the House" in placing sugar on the free list.

Senator Randall asked if President Wilson had not declared in a speech at Pittsburgh that he did not stand for free trade.

Senator James returned that the President was not a free trader and that the proposed bill, calculated to raise $300,000,000 in revenue, was not a free trade bill.

"If you say President Wilson is a free trader because he says 'free sugar,'" demanded Senator James, "you call yourself a free trader when you voted for free bread and free shoes?"

Senator Randall denied he was a free trader and asked if the Democratic National Committee had not instructed its orators in the West not to discuss free sugar, and also if the party would not have been defeated if they had discussed it there.

"I know the Chicago headquarters instructed Representative Aswell of Louisiana," he declared.

Had 125 Years' Protection. Senator James referred to the point made by the Louisiana leaders that President Wilson's platform has declared against tariff.

He would injure any legitimate business, said the Kentucky Senator, "is meant industrial legitimate and commercial legitimate industry. It does not refer to an industry which has had 125 years of Government aid and protection and is yet unable to take care of itself."

DARROW CASE STRICKEN FROM THE CALENDAR

Attorney Accused of Bribery in McNamara Case Probably Never Will Be Tried.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 16.—Clarence S. Darrow probably will not be tried again on the charge of bribery in connection with the trial of the McNamara brothers.

This opinion is general here because of the action of Assistant District Attorney Ford in striking the Darrow indictment from the court calendar.

This leaves the case without a date for trial and it is expected the District Attorney later will quash the charges.

CHARLEY KELLY WINS HIS SUIT AGAINST LEE KEE

Former House Speaker's Name Not Down in Chinese, but He Gets Pay for Lost Shirts.

GOT WRONG WASH BACK

Court, in Observation on Doughnuts, Rules Against Kee's U. R.-Like Defense.

Lee Kee, laundryman at 1412 North Garrison avenue, sued before a Justice of the Peace by Charles F. Kelly, once Speaker of the House of Delegates, for the loss of sundry articles of wearing apparel, made a defense after same United Railways Co.

Kee was accompanied to Justice Slater's court, where the case was tried Thursday afternoon by an interpreter and half a dozen other Chinese. Kelly was reinforced by his 14-year-old son, Virgil. The Kellys reside at 648 Delmar boulevard, but at the time the "laundry," on which the suit was based, was lost, they lived at 2024 Glasgow place.

Kelly testified that about the middle of last December he took three shirts and 25 collars to Kee and that a few days later when he called for the laundry he was given a bundle containing a red flannel undershirt and four pair of socks with holes in them.

When he took the bundle back, he said, Kee searched his stock for the missing package but was unable to find it. Since then Kelly had made several demands for his lost laundry, he said, but had always received the same response, which, he said, sounded to him like "Call around again sometime maybe if you do when your laundry come back I give it to you when I got it."

"He Got My Shirts." While Kelly was describing his valuable shirts and collars and telling of his visits to the laundry, Kee, without the aid of the interpreter, was preparing a skillful cross-examination. He whispered into the ear of his counsel so often that the latter had to motion him to be still.

"How do you know this Chinaman is the one who stole your laundry?" was the first question put by Kee's attorney.

"How do you know he's your client?" retorted Kelly. "I ought to know him. He got my shirts."

"Don't you know, Mr. Kelly, that the laundry was run in the name of Jim Kim when you took those shirts and collars there?" asked the lawyer.

"It might have been a different name," said the plaintiff, "but that's the same mug. He's the one that got my good shirts and collars."

When it came Kee's turn to take the stand he carried with him several laundry tickets and a big book. He took charge of the laundry on Garrison avenue between the time Kelly took his shirts and collars there and the date when Kelly got the red flannel undershirts and openwork socks.

He Washes, Then Irons. "What is your custom in doing business?" the lawyer asked Kee. "Mowah, sing a rag dance, hobbie-skirt tango," was the way the witness replied to the audience.

"He says he first washes the clothes and then irons them," explained the interpreter.

"I didn't mean that," said the attorney. "Ask him what record he keeps of his work."

Kee's sober reply sounded like "yesow, got a fit Louie, cheese how."

"He writes down in the book every bundle that comes to his laundry," said the interpreter.

The mass of scratches in the book was then consulted, and while the attorney, the interpreter, Kelly and all of Kee's Chinese friends gathered about the Judge's desk the witness tried to convince the Court that in all the Chinese hieroglyphics in the volume there was nothing that looked like Kelly.

"I hope the Court is not going to bind me by what that wall paper ledger has in it," said Kelly. "I don't care whether my name is written down in Chinese there or not. I positively identified the Chinaman and that is all there is to it."

After several witnesses had testified that Lee Kee had taken charge of the laundry after Kelly's shirts and collars were lost, Judge Slater held that did not relieve the defendant of responsibility for the loss.

"If I take my watch to a jeweler to be repaired and the jeweler sells out to a baker, I don't have to look doughnuts when I call for my watch, do I?" observed the Judge. "The baker in buying out the jeweler would be responsible for the loss."

Lee Kee insisted that so long as he was not Jim Kim he should not have to find Kelly's laundry which was lost by Jim.

"That's what the United Railways thought when it took over the Transit Co.," said one of the lawyers, "but the Supreme Court took otherwise."

When judgment for $7.50 the value of three shirts at $2.50 each and 25 collars at 15c each—was entered in favor of the plaintiff, Kelly congratulated his lawyer, and Lee Kee spluttered and the other Chinese joined him in a weird chorus of protest.

RECEIVER ASKED FOR $1,000,000 PEPPER ESTATE

Asserted in Suit Realty Produces No Revenue Because Heirs Can't Agree on Sale or Lease of Christian's Property, and Partition of It Is Sought.

Buildings, Many of Them Downtown, Said to Be Falling Into Bad State of Repair—1912 Taxes Unpaid; $200,000 Building Empty.

The surprising assertion that the realty holdings of the Christian Pepper estate, though valued at $1,000,000, produced no revenue, was made in a suit filed Friday, asking the appointment of a receiver and the partition of the property.

The tobaccoist's heirs, the petition states, have been unable to agree on the sale or leasing of the various real estate holdings, even when advantageous terms have been offered. "Paula is stated, the pieces of property have become vacant, and, as the heirs have not agreed on an agent or on repair measures, the buildings have fallen into a bad state of repair. At present, the petition states, the taxes for 1912 are due and penalties are accumulating, but the heirs have been unable to agree on any method of payment."

The plaintiffs in the suit are the St. Louis Union Trust Co., executor of the estate of Adolphus Pepper and trustee for his widow, Matilda Pepper, and the Mercantile Trust Co. and Nicholas M. Bell, executor of the estate of Margaret P. Bell.

Defendants in Case. The list of defendants begins with the names of Col. Bell and his daughter, Margaret P. Bell. The other defendants named are Christian P. Bell and wife, Adolphus Pepper, a minor; Frederick C. Pepper, Christian Pepper Jr. and wife, Charles G. Pepper and wife, Caroline J. Pepper (formerly Mrs. Buschman) and her daughter, Miss Estelle P. Buschman.

The most important of the realty holdings, as listed in the petition, are at 235-237 North Sixth street, 1100-1110 Market street, 3-11 South Eleventh street, 512-514 Washington avenue, Sixth and Wash streets, on Washington avenue, near Newstead avenue, at Twelfth street and Park avenue, the old Pepper homestead at 4445 San Francisco avenue, at Geary avenue and The Knolls street, 115-117 Geary avenue, the vacant Pepper house at Twelfth and Market streets, and a 32-acre farm in Crawford County, Missouri.

All Signatures Necessary. The most valuable piece of the estate's property, the petition says, is the vacant warehouse, valued at $200,000, and it has been ten years since it has been tenanted, making it impossible to obtain the signatures of all the tenants for its disposal by sale or lease.

Leahy, Saunders & Barth are attorneys for the plaintiffs. This firm represented Mrs. Pepper in her litigation with the relative of her late husband, Adolphus Pepper, in his lifetime.

ILLINOIS EDITOR SHOTS, SERIOUSLY WOUNDS, MAYOR

Dr. B. P. Windsor of Mount Auburn, After Being Hurt, Takes Train to Hospital.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. MOUNT AUBURN, Ill., May 16.—Dr. Bennett P. Windsor, Mayor of Mount Auburn, was shot in the abdomen and seriously wounded this morning by Fred W. Windsor, editor of the Mount Auburn Tribune.

The shooting was the culmination of a political feud between Windsor and Slate, which had existed for two years. At the spring election Windsor was chosen Mayor, despite vigorous opposition on the part of Slate, who criticized him for previous public acts.

At a meeting of the Board of Village Trustees Thursday night Windsor, in referring to a recent article in the Tribune criticizing him, said his action in connection with some town-keeping contracts, said he would "clean up a certain editor" the next time his (Windsor's) name appeared in the Tribune.

Windsor at Depot. Friday morning, shortly before 10 o'clock, Slate went to the C. & H. depot to meet an incoming train. Windsor arrived at the depot a few minutes later and followed the editor into the trainmaster's office. The two engaged in a wrangle and, according to witnesses, Windsor began choking Slate.

Windsor weighs about 200 pounds and is of powerful build, while Slate weighs only about 140 pounds. Windsor was choking Slate and calling him "snake" when the editor, who was holding on to his coat pocket and fire at his assailant through the window of his coat. Windsor fell.

Editor Gives Bond. Much excitement followed the shooting, and a crowd of Windsor's friends were organizing a mob when Constable Swick, a one-armed man, hurried Slate off to Taylorville.

J. K. Alexander, Slate's father-in-law, signed the bond and escorted Slate back to Mount Auburn.

Physicians at St. John's Hospital in Springfield stated Windsor's wound is not necessarily fatal. An X-ray examination located the bullet in the flesh wall of the abdomen. None of the vital organs was affected by the shot.

Windsor and Slate are each about 40 years old and have families. They have resided in Mount Auburn several years.

CABINET IN LONG SESSION FRAMES REPLY TO JAPAN

Meeting Lasts Three Hours and It Is Believed That the Draft Submitted by Secretary Bryan Was Sanctioned With Only a Few Minor Changes.

MAY BE GIVEN TO PUBLIC IN FEW DAYS

Text of Protest Also Likely to Come Out at Same Time—President Wilson Takes Precaution Against War Scare.

By Associated Press. WASHINGTON, May 16.—President Wilson and the Cabinet at a three-hour session today considered the reply of the United States to Japan's protest against the California anti-alien land law and it was announced that an answer to the Japanese note probably would be delivered very soon.

Secretary Bryan presented a draft of the answer which is believed to have been substantially approved. It may be made public after delivery to the Japanese Ambassador, although that was not definitely determined today. It is anticipated that if the reply is made public, the protest made by Japan will be given out at the same time.

Although frequent inquiries from the Japanese Ambassador indicate a disposition to press the negotiation, probably in recognition of the State of public mind in Japan, diplomatic practice warrants an allowance of at least several days for the delivery of the State Department's answer.

President Avoids War Scare. President Wilson's announcement that there are to be no naval or military movements of troops or ships that could be connected with the situation, is expected by official circles to be construed as evidence of his conviction that the issue can and will be adjusted by diplomacy.

The administration has been endeavoring to discourage war scares by every possible means as was evidenced by executive disapproval of an order last week for the immediate dispatch from Newport to Norfolk of the submarine fleet.

White House officials said there had been no change in the diplomatic position of the Japanese questions and the situation promised an early settlement. It was emphatically denied that any army or navy maneuvers, or movements of any kind not included in ordinary plans, arranged months in advance of execution, had been contemplated at any time.

The rumor which called forth the White House statement probably began its rounds earlier in the day, when the War Department made public orders for three officers and two companies of Coast Artillery to sail from San Francisco for Honolulu about May 21. These orders, it was explained, were in conformity with the program for the creation of a permanent and sufficient garrison at Hawaii, outlined in the last annual report of the Secretary of War and merely carried out plans of long standing.

JAPAN'S RADICALS STIRRED UP AGAIN

More Responsible Element Believe in Ready Settlement of Differences With U. S.

TOKIO, May 16.—Announcement that Gov. Johnson of California will sign the alien land ownership bill has again aroused the radicals, some of whom have acted the occasion to denounce the Government policy. They describe the legislation as inhuman and oppressive and ask if the spirit represented by Lincoln, Washington, Garrison and the status of liberty no longer exists.

Several radical parliamentarians have called a mass meeting for tomorrow, but the more responsible element among the Japanese declare they will not attend, adding that they declare they place complete confidence in the Government to settle the controversy amicably and honorably. They deny any agitation which might prove embarrassing.

EAST SIDE CLUB GETS 1017 MEMBERS

The Hannibal Commercial Club, now field secretary for the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, procured the application for the League of Missions to the League of the Pacific Building, dealer in multi-graph supplies.

A follow-up campaign is to be made by the league during the next week, according to announcement made by President Shapleigh. Many good prospects were reported by the soliciting committees. Shapleigh directed the committee to see the "prospects" within the next three or four days and report finally at a luncheon at the Mercantile Club next Thursday.

Several Hundred More to Come. Until this report is made the complete result of the four days' campaign will not be known. It is expected that several hundred new memberships will be taken by the committees in the following week.

The Rev. Dr. William J. Williamson, pastor of the Third Baptist Church, who had been invited to deliver the invocation at the luncheon Friday, declared that the movement could not be made a success without the preachers.

"No one has solicited my membership," said Dr. Williamson, "but I am going to take this opportunity to hand it in."

Philip B. Foulke's committee, with 33 applications, made the best showing Friday. H. B. Gordon, chairman of Committee No. 23, was a close second, with 31.

Eugene B. Stinde, chairman of Committee No. 43, turned in 25 applications from the East St. Louis Commercial Club, with a band of Gov. Major's Colonels, and reported that every East St. Louis business man approached signed applications for membership.

Beauty Doctor Tells Secret

Detroit Beauty Doctor Gives Simple Recipe to Darken Gray Hair and Promote Its Growth.

Miss Alice Whitney, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement: "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, promote growth, to half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1/4 oz. glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of the hair, relieve itching and scalp diseases, and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair.—ADV.

$10,000 PRIZE FOR AN AMERICAN GRAND OPERA

Los Angeles Raises Money and Will Produce Winner at Music Festival in 1914.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The National Federation of Musical Clubs announces today a competition for an American grand opera with a prize of $10,000. The prize money has been raised by Los Angeles, which promises a production of the prize opera at the ninth biennial festival of the National Federation of Musical Clubs, to be held there late in the spring of 1914. The competition will be subject to a censorship of librettos which will discourage the portrayal of any sordid or vicious subject. The federation proposes a similar contest every four years.

LUSTROUS HAIR SOFT—ABUNDANT

Unightly, Matted, Scraggy Hair Made Soft and Lustrous at Once—Parisian Sage.

If your hair is anything short of perfect; if it is too dry—brittle—dull—thin, or has been falling out, you can immediately bring about a change by using Parisian Sage. The first application removes dandruff and increases the beauty of the hair. A scientific study of the hair shows just what elements are needed to soften it, make it wavy and glossy and make it grow—just like watering the plants in the garden. Parisian Sage supplies hair needs. It is a tea-colored liquid delicately perfumed, not sticky or greasy, that comes in a fifty-cent bottle at the drugstore and toilet counters. The "Girl with the Auburn Hair" on the package.

Apply Parisian Sage and the effect is immediate. One application stops the hair from itching and freshens up the hair. Use it daily for a week and you will be surprised and delighted. Those who have tried it write enthusiastic letters and tell all their friends about it. Sold by Wolf-Wilson Drug Co. and dealers everywhere. With a money-back protection to every purchaser if not satisfactory. Parisian Sage is one of the quickest acting hair tonics known.—ADV.

PASSAGE OF TAX RAISE BILL OVER VETO IS INDICATED

Two-Thirds Majority Claimed in House and 41 of the 13 Councilmen in Line.

SCHMOLL RAISES "CLUB"

Powerful Administration Forces at Work in Efforts to Sustain Mayor Kiel.

A poll of the City Council shows that 11 of the 13 members of that body are ready to pass over Mayor Kiel's veto the tax increase bill to raise $50,000 to complete the upper deck and wagon approaches of the free bridge. This is one vote more than was cast for the measure by the Council a week ago.

In the House of Delegates friends of the tax bill declare they have 19 votes, or exactly the two-thirds majority necessary to make the bill a law. It is understood that the Democratic membership of the House, with the exception of Stuart of the Twenty-seventh Ward, will vote solidly for the tax increase and that three Republican Delegates also will be recorded in the affirmative.

The Council will meet at 4 o'clock this afternoon and the House at 7:30 p. m. Chairman Schmoll of the Republican City Committee, encouraged by Mayor Kiel and powerful administration forces, have been at work to dissuade the Republican majority in the Council from overriding the Mayor's disapproval of the proposed tax raise.

Schmoll hints at Resignation. He has represented to the Republican Assemblymen that if Mayor Kiel's policy is repudiated there may be reprisals on the part of the administration. This is taken to mean that the patronage club will be used against those Republicans who refuse to obey the mandate of the Republican machine.

In his argument to the Republicans, Schmoll gave the impression that the submission of a bridge bond issue for the completion of the whole bridge would be certain of success because of public confidence in the Mayor and his personal popularity in the city.

The Republican chairman echoed the Mayor's statement that the question of repealing the Reber approach ordinance and the Southern Traction loop would be put to a direct vote through the referendum. At the same time, he said, the voters would be asked to approve an issue of $50,000 of bonds.

This would be the correct method of satisfying the "popular clamor" in reference to the bridge and the carrying out of such a program will redound to the benefit of the Republican organization, so Schmoll contended.

The Mayor and his Republican chief, Schmoll, are agreed, however, that if the bond issue should fail, the taxes ought to be raised next year and the increase should provide sufficient funds for the completion of both the railroad and wagon approaches.

Tax Rate Higher in Other Cities. The present tax rate is $2.25 on the $100 value. It is proposed to increase this to $2.50, which includes 3 cents for general election and 10 cents for the bridge.

Statistics on file in the City Controller's office show that St. Louis' tax rate is lower than that of 125 other cities, including New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Louisville, and Denver.

Chicago and Philadelphia are for municipal purposes the $2.50 rate. At the same time, the city has the lowest rate of the three large cities.

Assemblymen favor raising the public utility tax rate to 1.50, or 50 cents, on the $100 value. This rate is arbitrarily set by the city and has no basis in the proposed vote on the proposition.

The tax bill is deemed likely that a new bill providing for the $2.50 rate, the amount of the proposed increase, will insure the adoption of the appropriation bill, $100,000 for public employees. The city has been paid since the last bond issue.

DAUGHTER'S WEDDING. The daughter of the late Mayor Kiel, who was married yesterday, is a mining engineer and came to St. Louis on Tuesday to attend the wedding.

They come in size to get one of the new chairs in the place of the old one. The new chair is a mining engineer and came to St. Louis on Tuesday to attend the wedding.

BIG FIGHTER TAKES ON TWO POLICEMEN, SKULL FRACTURED

Benjamin Hildebrandt, 200 Pounds, Subdued by Officers and Dr. Ralph Riley.

ALL GRAPPLE WITH HIM

Patrolman Fingly Knocks Him Out and Eugene Cuendet Hauls Him to Hospital.

Benjamin Hildebrandt, a chauffeur, 6 feet 10 inches tall and weighing 200 pounds, is at the city hospital with a fractured skull and other injuries resulting from his attempt to whip two policemen and a doctor at Olive street and Walton avenue at 1:30 a. m. Friday. Hildebrandt formerly lived at 4651 Olive street. He was unable to tell his present address, but said it was on Nagral Bridge avenue.

Patrolman George Mason, according to his report, was near Olive street and Walton avenue when he heard two men quarrelling. He found Hildebrandt threatening Bert Williamson, an automobile machinist, of 487 Olive street. When Mason warned Hildebrandt not to start a fight Hildebrandt kicked him on the shins and in the stomach and took his night stick from him.

Mason fired a shot in the air to summon aid and then recaptured his club and struck Hildebrandt on the head with it several times.

Dr. Ralph Riley of 461 Olive street heard the shot and went to help the policeman. About the same time W. S. Stinson of 1319 Delmar boulevard drove up in his automobile. Mason asked him to find another policeman.

Mason and Dr. Riley grappled with Hildebrandt and the three fell to the ground. Hildebrandt had regained his feet when Patrolman Delaney arrived. Delaney struck Hildebrandt on the head with his club, knocking him unconscious.

Eugene Cuendet of 4 Hortense place, who was passing, took Hildebrandt and the policeman to the dispensary at his automobile. Hildebrandt's condition was said to be serious and he was rushed to the city hospital. Patrolman Mason had several cuts and bruises and his uniform was torn.

Recent Wedding Saves Life.

Mason told a Post-Dispatch reporter that when he drew his revolver, after Hildebrandt had taken his club from him, he would have shot Hildebrandt but for a sudden thought that came to him in the heat of the conflict. He remembered that he was married only four months ago.

"I thought I'd rather take a chance on getting licked than to make his bride weepy by shooting a man," said Mason. At the city hospital Hildebrandt said he had a friend whom he knew only as "Red" who had been drinking in a saloon at Walton avenue and Washington boulevard. After leaving the saloon, he said, his companion told him that a man was following them. He went back and asked the man what he wanted, he said.

A policeman came running up and struck him on the head with a club, he said, and he cannot remember what happened after that.

EFFORT RENEWED TO OPEN CINCINNATI CAR SERVICE

Absence of Interference on Ayondale Line Gives Traction Officials Encouragement.

CINCINNATI, May 16.—A more determined effort was made today by the Cincinnati Traction Co. to extend its street car service. The absence of any serious interference with cars on the Ayondale line led the officials to the belief that service on other routes could be resumed.

Activities of the strikers were directed toward making the parade in the afternoon a success. Delegates from every union in the city were expected to be in the line of march and later to take part in the mass meeting at the Cincinnati baseball park. Many shops closed to let the workmen take part in the union demonstration.

Efforts were continued to bring the two sides together, with view of reaching a settlement. The statement of the union officials that the open or closed shop was not insisted upon by the striking men caused renewed efforts by Mayor Hunt and other city officials to end the trouble.

NEW ARMY BREAD DOESN'T WORRY ABOUT WEATHER

U. S. Recipe Supplanting Sour French Loaf Is Impervious to Climate Conditions.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Sour bread, baked after the French army fashion, finally has been given up by the United States military establishment. After many experiments Commissary-General H. G. Sharpe has developed a new bread that is impervious to the weather, sweeter than the old loaves and easier to transport. Following is the recipe:

To 100 pounds of sifted flour add 52 pounds of water, one and a half pounds of dried yeast, three pounds of sugar and one and a quarter pounds of salt. The mixture is cooked in a slow oven and the loaves are baked flat.

BAPTISTS URGE TITHE-GIVING IN ALL CHURCHES

Convention Adopts Report Based Upon System Laid Down in the Old Testament.

At a demonstrative session of the sixty-seventh annual Southern Baptist convention at the Third Baptist Church, Friday, the body went on record as endorsing a system of tithing in all the churches. The discussion of the matter was enlivened by the use of the word "tithing" on the floor.

Previously President Dargan's ruling of Thursday that there must be no applause in the convention was laid aside while the delegates cheered the name of Dixie. Even the president turned his gavel over to the secretary and joined in the outburst.

The report of the Rev. W. W. Hamilton of Virginia, chairman of the Committee on the Regulation of Missionary Contributions, brought up the question of tithing. The report went beyond missionary finance and took up church finances in general.

"We recommend," said the report, "that in every possible way our churches be led to see the biblical recommendations and commands for regular and systematic giving in I Cor. 16:2, provide for special collections for special needs as in Acts 11, 9, approve the arrangement of previously promised bounty and orderly effort to have it in hand at settled times as in II Cor. 9, 1-5—the Bible rejoices in the hilarious giving which, in a time of great spiritual uplift like that of Pentecost, does the unusual thing and lays down great sums at the feet of the Apostles, as in Acts 4, 34-35.

Tithe Standard Urged.
Thus, to be comprehensive and Biblical, our plan of finance must be intelligent and systematic and symmetrical and liberal and worshipful. We recommend that the tithe be made the minimum standard of our giving and that our pastors and churches seek to enlist all of our people in observing such a standard. We need not discuss here or in our churches whether this be the New Testament requirement, but we need to know and to feel that anything less than the Jews gave under the law is inconceivable to those who are saved by grace and who regard all things from the viewpoint of God's unspokeable gifts to us."

The report went on to recommend that there should be quarterly and semi-annual efforts to clear up all arrearages and that at least once a quarter additional opportunity for free-will offerings be given.

A further suggestion was that a minimum of $1 should be contributed yearly by each member of the church.

A motion to indorse the report as the platform and cause it to be printed and circulated throughout the association brought the Rev. E. L. Wesson of Mississippi to his feet.

"Put it in the minutes, if you wish," he urged, "but to indorse it as a platform would be lying, because we do not all believe in tithing. Some of us view it the other way, and if it goes forth that way it will not go forth as a lie."

"Lie" Not in Order.
With a sharp bang of the gavel, President Dargan ruled that use of the word "lie" on the floor of the convention was out of order. The motion was put to a vote and the building shook with the roar of the ayes. Not a single negative vote was offered.

The earlier demonstration which set aside the chairman's ruling of Thursday was spontaneous. At that session some of the delegates applauded a speaker who urged Baptist co-operation with other missionary endeavor in foreign lands. The chairman held that this was out of order.

The Rev. Charles H. Rust of Rochester, N. Y., a former delegate from the Northern Baptists, spoke of his love for the South. He spoke of the Golden Gates and of places where those of one accord gather for rejoicing.

"But," he said after a dramatic pause, "somehow it seems as if Dixie is the grandest place of all."

Name of Dixie Applauded.
In an instant delegates were clapping hands, shouting, rising upon their feet and waving handkerchiefs and hymn-books. President Dargan handed the gavel to the secretary and remarked that he guessed he'd have to applaud a little, too. And he did. When he looked around for the gavel again it had disappeared. It was not forthcoming again until the enthusiasm had begun to wane.

In a whimsical word of apology Dr. Dargan said the outburst reminded him of a negro driving an ox team that had started to run away. "Whar you gwine?" asked another negro whom he passed. "I don't know," the first one replied, pointing to his oxen; "ask them."

Dr. Rust presented a floral offering to the convention from the Northern churches.

B. H. Coleman of Dallas, Tex., announced that at the next annual convention he would offer a resolution to rescind the law by which women Baptists are not allowed voice in the annual meetings.

"Steam-Roller" Rules Adopted.
What was humorously called by some of the delegates the "steam-roller" rules of procedure were adopted by the convention. A committee had been appointed to decide what parliamentary tactics should govern the body. Each member of the committee had his own suggestion.

The Rev. F. C. McConnell favored Melia's rules. Joshua Levering favored Kerfoot's rules. E. C. Cameron, the chairman, favored President Dargan's idea that the chair should decide what rulings should be made. This suggestion was adopted by the convention.

The committee to locate the next annual convention prepared a report in the morning favoring Nashville, Tenn. It was thought the report would be adopted.

SEERS EVADE VICTIMS
BY SHAMMING CONTAGION

Chicago Clairvoyants Get the Money, Write They Have Contagious Disease, Then Move.

CHICAGO, May 16.—"Contagion letters" sent by clairvoyants in keeping their victims away from the offices where they had been fleeced have just been shown to the Cook County grand jury. They form part of the evidence that the State's Attorney has gathered for his prosecution of the "spook trust." The letters purport to be written by the secretary of the "professor." They inform the recipients that the "professor" has just contracted a contagious disease.

They state that as the "professor" was solicited for the welfare of his "clients" and did not wish them to be exposed to the disease by a visit to the "studio," it was suggested that they remain away until police was received that he had recovered.

Persons who had given the clairvoyants from $20 to $150, after waiting a reasonable time, started out to call on the fleecers and found that they had moved several weeks before.

The Pulse

of a player-piano should be in its pedals

It is through the pedals that the performer is in constant contact with the instrument. It is through the pedaling that he naturally and instinctively tries to give expression to his musical feeling.

Therefore, just as the human pulse indicates the heart's action, so the feel of the pedals under the various strengths of pedaling shows the expression with just what volume and accent the music will play.

This is absolutely true of the

Baldwin
Manualo

In playing it, the feel of the pedals guides the performer perfectly in securing the effects desired.

Every change in the force and accent of the pedaling instantly produces a corresponding change in the volume and accent of the music. The pedaling affects the working of the piano hammers so directly that it controls their action as completely as one playing upon the piano keys.

You soon come to know that a certain feel of the pedals will produce a certain volume and accent just as the feel of the key guides you in securing the desired expression in hand-playing. Almost immediately you instinctively pedal in just the way to make the Manualo give just the effects your musical feeling demands. You have the same delightful sensation of playing a musical instrument as the artist who plays by hand because, through the Manualo pedals, you are in as intimate accord with the piano and it with you as you would be through the piano keys.

Our booklet explains the Manualo in detail. Send for a free copy TODAY.

NEW PROMOTION OF TEACHERS PLAN
BY BOARD MEMBER

Dr. J. P. Harper Submits Proposed Amendments to Present Public School Rules.

Dr. J. P. Harper of 5663 Cabanne avenue, a member of the Board of Education, has submitted to the board several proposed amendments to the present system of promoting teachers in the public schools, his purpose being to outline a plan by which the merit system may be more effectively applied in making such promotions.

The recommendations follow a long and comprehensive campaign which was waged by the teachers through the columns of the Post-Dispatch. The teachers wrote letters to this paper. Recently the teachers sent to the Board of Education a petition in which they enclosed clippings of all of the letters and editorials published on the subject in the Post-Dispatch. This indicated a long statement by Supt. Blawett in defense of the present promotion system.

Promotion System Faults.
The teachers assert that the chief fault in the promotion system is that the principals of schools, who have the power of recommending promotions, have so many duties that they have not the necessary time to study the qualifications of individual teachers. They also say that principals sometimes show personal preferences in recommending promotions.

The proposed amendments would decrease the number of classes of teachers in the various schools, and would result in the immediate promotion of several instructors, who would be listed in higher classes at increased salaries. This plan, according to Dr. Harper, follows the rules in force in various other large cities, and is declared to be an improvement over the promotion rules now followed in St. Louis.

The increase in salaries resulting from the elimination of some of the classes and titles would amount to about $4000 a year, the report states. Several classes of teachers are enlarged and promotions are made optional with the superintendent and the board. If these optional places are filled it will increase the total salary roll about $10,000 a year, Dr. Harper says in his report.

Recommendations to Board.
The recommendations of Dr. Harper follow:

Board of Education, St. Louis:
Gentlemen: "I recommend that the rules of the Board of Education be so amended that the number of ranks or grades of appointed high school assistants be reduced to three, and that the number of appointed high and district school assistants in each rank be apportioned as follows:

HIGH SCHOOLS.
1. Not more than one-third of all assistants shall be head assistants.
2. Not more than one-third of all assistants shall be first assistants.
3. All others, excluding probationary appointments, shall be second assistants.

DISTRICT SCHOOLS.
1. One head assistant in every school having 14 rooms or more.
2. Not more than one-third of all assistants shall be first assistants.
3. All others, excluding probationary appointments, shall be second assistants.

"I recommend further that the Committee on Instruction, together with the Superintendent of Instruction, be requested to consider the advisability of this amendment, and to embody their conclusions and recommendations in the form of a resolution to be presented to the board at its regular meeting in June, 1913.

Respectfully,
"J. P. HARPER."

Some Suggested Changes.
"Harold H. Tittman, Pres. Board of Education, St. Louis, Mo. Dear Sir: "It has long been my feeling that our regulations for the promotion of teachers need revision. The suggested changes are contained in this paper. I should appreciate your opinion on the matter. The amendment being given as a brief tabular outline of the character and results of the changes proposed."

He then gives two tables, which are printed elsewhere herewith, showing the proportion of district school teachers in the ranks of head assistant, first assistant and second assistant, and the proportion of high school teachers in each of the ranks in which they are classified—head, first, second, third, fourth and fifth assistants.

The tabulation continues with:
"2. Salary schedule. No change in district schools; no change for head and first assistants in high school. Second assistants in high school to have the combined schedule of second and third assistants as now provided. Second assistants would then begin at $1100 and end, as now, at $1640. Schedule for third, fourth and fifth assistants abolished.

Increases in Salaries.
"3. Salary Increase—Very small increase—perhaps $4000; optional increase for high schools between $800 and $10,000; optional increase for district schools between $800 and $10,000. Total optional increase between $18,000 and $20,000.

"4. Superintendent's Authority—Under existing rules he may promote as many as he sees fit in the high schools up to the maximum ratio. In the district schools he is obliged to promote the number specified. My suggestion is to extend his discretion to district schools also, so that he may promote when and where he thinks best up to the maximum ratio.

"5. Purpose of Proposed Changes—To remove as much as possible the injustice of promoting one teacher and not another equally worthy; to stimulate teachers, by increasing the chances for reward, to render for our children the best possible service of which they are capable.

"J. P. HARPER."
Grammar School Pay Increases.
The greatest increase in chances of promotion are made in the high schools, Dr. Harper told a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday in explaining the recommendations.

System of Changes in School
Teachers Dr. Harper Proposes

Proportion of District School Teachers in Each Rank:
Obligatory Ratio	Proposed Maximum Ratio	Maximum Increase or Decrease
Head assistant... 1 in 14-room school	1 in 14-room school	20 per cent. increase
First assistant... 1-6 of all below H. A.	1-3 of all assistants	110 per cent. increase
Second assistant... 5-6 of all below H. A.	2-3 of all assistants	50 per cent. increase
Proportion of High School Teachers in Each Rank:
Maximum Ratio	Proposed Maximum Ratio	Maximum Increase or Decrease
Head assistant... 1-3 of all assistants	1-3 of all assistants	25 per cent. increase
First assistant... 4-15 of all assistants	1-3 of all assistants	25 per cent. increase
Second assistant... 4-15 of all assistants	1-3 of all assistants	25 per cent. increase
Third assistant... 2-15 of all assistants	Abolished	Abolished
Fourth and fifth assistants... 2-15 of all assistants	Abolished	Abolished

mentations. The immediate promotions with salary increases would come to teachers in the grammar schools, he said.

It is proposed to abolish the fourth, fifth and sixth assistants in the grammar schools and to give these teachers the title of third assistants. The average increase in salary for each would be about $90 a year, according to Dr. Harper. This will place the teachers in these schools further up in the line of promotion.

The percentage in the number of first and second assistants would be increased, thereby opening the way for immediate promotions for several teachers, if they are eligible to promotion by the merit system.

In the high schools Dr. Harper proposes to provide a head assistant principal in each school of 14 rooms or more. Heretofore only schools of 15 rooms or more have had head assistants. The number of first assistants in high schools would be increased by 110 per cent under the plan of Dr. Harper by authorizing the employment of more teachers of that class.

Dr. Harper recommends that in grammar schools, where the authority of the Superintendent to promote teachers is fixed and obligatory, this authority be made optional with the Superintendent and made more elastic by providing more teachers in the higher classes.

There is merit in the assertion of the teachers that the principals have so many duties that they are unable to properly study the individual qualifications before recommending promotions.

Dr. Harper said.

To overcome this it has been suggested informally that cadet teachers, graduates of the Teachers' College, be employed regularly as clerks to principals to do clerical work, and be assigned to substitute teachers' duty when needed.

WANTS NAVY OFFICERS TO DO SERVICE FOR TRAINING

Department Frowns on Retirement of Juniors With Many Active Years Before Them.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Young officers in the navy today were discussing with mixed emotions the announcement by Secretary Daniels that hereafter the department will frown upon the retirement of juniors from the service. The statement follows:

"While the Secretary of the Navy has not issued any general orders restricting the applications for voluntary retirement under the personnel act of 1899, yet it is known that his attitude and the probable attitude of the administration is in opposition to allowing the retirement of the younger officers who are in health and have a number of years of useful service on the active list before them."

Secretary Daniels looks with extreme disfavor on the retirement of young officers before they give adequate service for the education and training received at Government expense.

MILITANTS' BOMBS
BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN SET BY MEN

Plants of Explosives, Some With Clockwork, Found in Various Parts of London.

By Associated Press.
LONDON, May 16.—The militant suffragettes' campaign of placing bombs in public institutions to coerce the Government into granting the parliamentary franchise to women was carried on in several quarters of London and the provinces today.

A canister of explosives with a clockwork attachment was found in the Rotherhithe Public Library in southeast London this morning. It was labeled "Votes for Women." According to belief in some quarters, it was placed there by a man. The police suspect many men have been engaged by the suffragettes so long as it did not contain any incitement to crime.

The general tone of the newspaper issued this week was much milder than before the raid on the militant suffragettes' headquarters and printing office.

fluid. A partly burned fuse was attached to one end. The police declare the bomb apparently was set there by militants.

Bomb in Church, Too.
Still another canister of explosives with a partly burned fuse was found today in Holy Trinity Church at Hastings, a popular watering place on the South Coast, where the militants have been most active during the week.

The Government has been defeated by the "wild women" in the effort to suppress the militant suffragettes' newspaper, The Suffragette.

After Archibald Bodkin, counsel for the Treasury, had announced that the Government would prosecute anyone printing the newspaper in the future, the labor press and some of the liberal newspapers, which are the strongest supporters of the present cabinet, protested that this was an infringement on the liberty of the press. The former Socialist member of Parliament, George Lansbury, and the Socialist member, James Keir Hardie, personally offered to undertake the publication of the paper, but the suffragettes declined their offer.

Thereupon the Home Office issued a statement declaring that Bodkin's pronouncement had been misconstrued and that the Women's Social and Political Union or any publisher could lease the Suffragette so long as it did not contain any incitement to crime.

The general tone of the newspaper issued this week was much milder than before the raid on the militant suffragettes' headquarters and printing office.

Miss Zelle Emerson, the militant of Jackson, Mich., was operated on today for appendicitis, which is said to have developed owing to the privations she underwent while she was carrying out a "hunger strike" in Holloway jail.

THYRSUS PLAYERS WIN HIGH HONORS IN STRONG DRAMA

"The World and His Wife" Admirably Played for Post-Dispatch Pure Milk Benefit.

GAINS HEARTY APPLAUSE

Play's Big Emotional Moments Were Realized With Sincere Dramatic Effectiveness.

SAVE THE BABIES!

Twenty Dollars will save the life of one baby by giving it PURE MILK.

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS.

THEYRSUS, the dramatic society of Washington University, gave an excellent performance of "The World and His Wife" at the Victoria Theater on Thursday evening for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund to save the tenement babies from sickness and death caused by impure milk during the hot summer months.

The audience was not as large as had been hoped, but this fact did not serve to diminish the zeal of the Thyrsus players. Their work was so good as to compare favorably with that of professionals, and they have every reason to feel proud of their achievement.

It also was a pleasing truth that the house was finely appreciative of this good work by the clever Thyrsus members in the cast of Jose Echegaray's powerful drama.

There was much applause and it was not in the least perfunctory. Several times during the progress of the play this applause was irresistibly compelled by the effectiveness with which certain scenes were sent across the footlights. At the close of each act the applause was hearty and long-continued. When the play's absorbing story had been completely told, the audience testified warmly to the truth of its relish of the entertainment.

It is doubtful if a better amateur dramatic performance has ever been given on a St. Louis stage.

The credit for this fact is justly to be apportioned to the company as a whole, each player sharing in proportion to the individual opportunity enjoyed. The spirit of their performance was admirably in accord with the requirements of first-rate stock company endeavor. There was no undue striving for "star honors." Each member of the cast aimed at the highest acquittal and all played for the best results as a whole.

Naturally, owing to the story's own shaping, the greater importance attached to the three central figures of Donna Teodora, the slandered wife, played by Miss Mildred de Courcy; Don Julian, her husband, played by Mr. C. Eugene Smith; and Don Ernesto, their friend, whom idle gossip accused of being the wife's lover, played by Mr. Robert A. Jossell. These three parts were portrayed with sincere ability, astonishing at times in certainty of stroke and in dramatic truthfulness and fire.

The role of Don Severo, the hard and suspicious brother of Don Julian, was made properly forbidding by the faithful playing of Mr. Sean de Kins interpretation. That of Donna Mercedes, his wife, was skillfully played by Miss Rita Monteth, who revealed shrewdly the conflicting truth of Mercedes' surrender to the evil influence of scandal in despite of her belief in the innocence of Donna Teodora and Don Ernesto.

Mr. Moulton Green made a most magnetic and likable high-comedy figure of Capt. Beaulieu of the British Embassy in Madrid, loyal friend and champion of the hapless woman and man who stood in the black shadow of unmerited shame. He has a lightly humorous touch and a surprising ease of manner, which counted vitally for the best results in this part's playing.

Mr. William Carson was cleverly amusing in the role of Don Pepito, the affectedly mincing son of Don Severo and Donna Mercedes. Mr. Leo McCarthy proved himself a genuinely good character-comedian in the picturesque part of Genaro, a condescender, and Mr. Paul Eilman, as a servant in Don Julian's household, was quite satisfactory within that role's narrow limitations.

The performance was staged under the able direction of Mr. Joseph Solari, who is entitled to high credit for its unvarying excellence. The Washington University Orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. Harvey Ramsey, 13, so pleasantly distinguished itself as to win many rounds of well-deserved applause.

The Post-Dispatch takes this occasion to thank Thyrsus most heartily for its generosity in lending a benefit performance to the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund and to congratulate Stage Director Solari and Thursday Night's players upon the artistic success of the performance.

Demeriting the Smile

By JAMES E. CRAIG.

("For smiling, no matter what the provocation may be, five demerit marks.") Telephone girl's interview in the Post-Dispatch.)

A HARD, mirthless life is the telephone girl's. With nothing but work till her brain fairly whirrs, With never a second to loiter awhile, And a good heavy fine if she ventures to smile! But O, blessed maiden! The rules don't require A laugh when a humorist gets on the wire!

They coach her in phrases, in sentence in tones They fine her for speaking a phrase of her own; And if she says "person," when "party" is the word, It's a cinch that her slip of the tongue has been heard. But she's not made to giggle when Percy, the Wag, Murmurs "Plug up the line, it's beginning to sag!"

It's demerits for this thing, demerits for that And a deep, mortal sin if she stops for a chat. O they lodge her with spies as she works at her board And they label each movement and action and word.

But she's not made to snicker when one on the line Says "Hello, there, Chickie! Say, you're looking fine!"

If she lolls in her chair, if she stands on her feet, If her voice is too strident, too low or too sweet, If she fumbles a number or fumbles a name, Whatever the reason she's fined just the same.

But, thank Heaven! she'll earn not a fine should she fall To chortle at Wulke-boy's wit, thin and pale.

ARCTIC TRIP TO CROCKER LAND TO BEGIN ON JULY 3

Wireless Will Be Available for Men Seeking Nature of Strange Region.

NEW YORK, May 15.—After many setbacks the Crocker Land Expedition has completed arrangements for departure from this city on July 3, under command of Dr. Donald B. MacMillan, in the ship Diana.

Crocker Land is a supposed large island or continent which was seen from a distance by Rear Admiral Peary in 1896. Dr. MacMillan hopes to learn definitely whether Crocker Land is really an Arctic continent, an island or only an illusion.

The principal members of his party, according to information made public today, will be Maurice C. Tanquary, zoologist of the State Agricultural College at Manhattan, Kan.; W. Elmer E. Kiblow, botanist and zoologist, and Ensign Fitzhugh Green, U. S. N., physician and engineer.

Carrying a crew of 25 in addition to the scientific members of the expedition, the Diana will sail for Greenland to obtain Eskimo dog teams and supplies, and probably will spend three or four years in the Arctic. Flagler Bay, on the west side of Kane Basin, will be made the winter quarters.

A large wireless plant, which will be furnished by the United States Government, will be set up for communication to Cape Wostenholme, in Hudson Bay, 1600 miles away, where the Canadian Government is completing a wireless station, and will relay all messages.

PULLMAN CAR CONDUCTOR CUTS PORTER IN FIGHT

Travelers at Union Station See White Man Slash Negro Until Skull Is Fractured.

Travelers taking late trains at Union Station, Thursday night, saw a desperate fight between Howard Alexander, a Pullman conductor, and Eria Ganlin, a Pullman porter. Alexander's weapon was a knife, and the negro tried to use the box step in front of his car, but was prevented by the white man, who slashed his head with such fierce strokes that the skull was fractured and the knife blade, turning back, cut Alexander's hand severely.

Alexander, who was about to "take out" four sleeping cars on the Burlington-Alton 11:30 train to Kansas City was taken to police headquarters, and another man was hurriedly called to take his run. The negro, who was employed on one car of the Alton's midnight Chicago train, was sent to the city hospital.

Alexander is a widower, and lives at 3518 Washington avenue. The porter lives in Chicago. Alexander told the police that he rebuked the negro for leaving his place at the Chicago train on track 24 and talking with the porters of the Kansas City train, which was on 25.

"Get back to your own train," Alexander said he commanded the porter. "You make me," Ganlin is said to have replied. Alexander went to the station midway and called

Alex R. Graves, platform man for the Pullman company. Graves, after hearing his complaint, went with Alexander and found the porter, who had in the meantime returned to his place. He warned him not to repeat his offense.

Thereupon, Alexander said, the negro cursed him, struck him with his fist and stooped to pick up his box step. Alexander told the police he then drew his knife and "went to carving" until the negro ran.

The negro was in such a serious condition that his version of the affair was not obtained.

Sherriff Kills Mexican.

KANOPOLIS, Kan., May 15.—Sheriff R. W. Bradshaw of Ellsworth shot and killed Ferris Martinez, a Mexican laborer, when suppressing a riot among Mexicans, who were fighting.

Martinez attacked the sheriff, who stood his ground and fired.

Had Serious Lung Trouble—Now Well

It is surprising that there exists much skepticism as to the possibility of a person recovering from severe Lung Trouble when there are so many reports of complete recoveries brought about through the use of Eckman's Alternative. This is a remedy for the throat and lungs, which should be investigated by every sufferer from this class of ailment.

My Dear Sir: For two years I was afflicted with hemorrhages of the lungs, and in February of 1913 I was taken with a severe attack of pneumonia. When I recovered, my ability to walk about the house I was left with a frightful hacking cough, which no medicine I had taken could alleviate. It was at this time, March, 1913, that I started taking Eckman's Alternative. In a short time my cough was cured and I was pronounced well. Since that time I have had two slight attacks of pneumonia, and I have resorted to no other medicine to effect a recovery. I cannot speak too highly for the good it has done.

(Signed) HOWARD L. KLOTZ.

LEVI P. MORTON IS 89 FAMED CROWN FOR GREECE J. M. GREENWOOD RESIGNS

Former Vice-President in Better Health on Birthday.
NEW YORK, May 16.—Levi P. Morton, Vice-President of the United States from 1889 to 1893, and Governor of New York State in 1894 and 1896, who has been so gravely ill during the last two months that his life was often despaired of, celebrated his 89th birthday today in a better condition than he has been for some time.
He is able to leave his room occasionally, but spends most of his day reclining on a couch near a window of his Fifth Avenue home.

Constantine Likely to Wear That of Byzantine Emperors.
ATHENS, May 16.—The monks of Mt. Athos, the celebrated monastery on the coast of the Aegean Sea, consented today to the imperial robe and the crown used by the Byzantine Emperors, now in their keeping, to King Constantine of Greece to wear at his coronation.
The crown, which is studded with gems, is likely to become permanently the royal crown of Greece. The robe, covered with beaten gold, weighs 20 pounds.

SISTER TELLS HOW DR. COLE PRACTICED HARD IN HYPNOTISM

He Would Hold Mother's Hands and Make Suggestions Hours at Time, Says Mrs. Hebert.

BIG ESTATE IS AT STAKE
Heirs of Nathan Cole Say One Brother Is in Absolute Control Through Trusteeship.

Mrs. Hallie Cole Hebert, one of the plaintiffs in the Nathan Cole estate suit, explained to a Post-Dispatch reporter Friday the charge, made in her petition, that her brother, Dr. Ernest H. Cole, dominated the mind of their aged mother, Mrs. Rebecca Cole of 4305 West Pine boulevard, by means of hypnotic suggestion.

The suit, filed Thursday, is designed to set aside the voting trust agreement by which F. N. Judson, as trustee, holds the stock of the Nathan Cole Investment Co. This arrangement was made by Cole, wealthy wholesale grocer, Mayor of St. Louis and member of Congress, in lieu of a will.

Since Cole died in 1904, Judson has held the stock of the Nathan Cole Investment Co., capitalized at $300,000. The other heirs charge that Judson has made Dr. Cole president of the company and that Dr. Cole has recently shut the other six heirs out of participation in the income.

Student of Hypnotism, She Says.
"For years past," said Mrs. Hebert at the Buckingham Hotel, "my brother has talked much of hypnotism and the power of suggestion and has given a great deal of his time to reading books on the subject, sitting up late at night to engage in such study."

"It was his boast that he could hypnotize anybody, and he often tried, when I was living at the family home, to persuade me to let him try his hypnotic powers on me."

"I refused, but he seemed to gain complete control over mother's mind, either by actual hypnotic power or by her belief that he had such power."

"I have seen him hold mother's hands for five or six hours, and make suggestions to her, which she would repeat. This he would declare to be proof of his hypnotic powers. This happened not once, but many times."

Payments Small, She Says.
Mrs. Hebert, whose home is in Pasadena, Cal., became a widow in 1896. She has two sons, nearly grown. Until two years ago, she says, she received a certain income, sent to her by Dr. Cole from the income of the Nathan Cole Investment Co. Since then, she says, the payments have been few and small. Last January, she said, she received $1.42 as her share, and in February exactly the same.

She said Dr. Cole cut off the other heirs because he was angry with them for having instituted an inquiry into whether the principal of the estate was being kept intact, and whether they were getting their proportionate share of the interest. Amedee B. Cole took the lead in this difficulty, she said. It was after this difficulty that she left the Cole home and returned to California. She told how, after the scene between Amedee Cole and a motorman in a restaurant last September, she went to Judson's office.

Thinks Cafe Scene Arranged.
"I told Mr. Judson," she said, "that the restaurant scene was arranged by my brother Ernest to discredit Amedee. He replied that he could only preserve the trust, and that the trust would continue during the life of my mother."

"I told him it would be a good thing for him also to think of preserving the good name of the family and told him that he could stop the trouble among the heirs by removing Ernest as president of the company and seeing that each heir should receive a fair share. He repeated that all he could do was to preserve the trust and that he would take no action."

"Since my income ceased, I have been virtually an object of charity and have been dependent on help from my other brothers. This is hardly fitting for one who is eventually to receive a large property, and I do not think it is what my father intended."

Estate Held Together.
The Cole trust agreement is considered by lawyers one of the most remarkable devices ever employed to hold an estate together. So long as Mrs. Cole lives—she is now 81 years old—the stock of the investment company is to remain in the trustee's hands, and the income is to be paid to Mrs. Cole, with no requirement of any distribution among the heirs.

The heirs, some of whom have grandchildren, feel that this arrangement is unjust, particularly since the power of shutting them out of the income has been exercised.

In asking to have the trust agreement set aside, they allege that it is illegal and against public policy, that their father was not mentally competent when he signed it, and that duress was used over Mrs. Cole by her son, Ernest, to get her signature. This duress, the petition states, was a threat that one of her sons would be sent to prison.

Mrs. Hebert and Richard Cole are the plaintiffs, but four other heirs—Amedee, Herman and Nathan Cole Jr. and Mrs. Reba Stiles, while nominal defendants, are in sympathy with the suit.

Attorney Judson declined to discuss the suit, saying he had not had an opportunity to read the petition. All efforts to obtain a statement from Dr. Ernest H. Cole have been unavailing.

Tramp Slashes Police Chief.
FORT MADISON, Ia., May 16.—Chief of Police J. B. Watkins today was slashed with a knife in the hands of an unidentified man, said to be a tramp.

The man was lying on the ground, and Watkins, believing him to be intoxicated, attempted to lift him and receive a vicious thrust in the throat. Watkins' assailant is in jail.

State Constables Dismissed.
ANDERSON, S. C., May 16.—All State Constables of South Carolina were dismissed from office by Gov. Cole Blaise, who said that under the Supreme Court's ruling that liquor may be shipped into South Carolina, when for personal use, the Constables cannot tell which shipment are for illegal use and are, therefore, useless.

THE MARATHON HOMESTRETCH.

When 280 busy business men devote five successive half days to active canvassing for votes to build up a great central commercial organization there is something doing. It demonstrates fine public spirit and the demonstration is as valuable to the city as the expansion of the organization. It is a sign of progress. Even if the Business Men's League does not win the Post-Dispatch prize cup, the addition to the membership assures the success of the democratizing plan. In East St. Louis a similar spirit prevails. The total membership of the Commercial Club there is now 646, with 354 to gain in order to win the cup. The comparative returns today will be interesting. They will go far to settle the contest. The contestants are on the homestretch.

The question of harmony in the Republican party seems to be a question of which faction will consent to lie down inside of the other.

AN O'HALLORAN DEFENDS HUERTA.

Who is this "Thomas O'Halloran" that is writing perverted letters to the press eulogizing Huerta and pleading that the revolutionary President shall be "given a chance"? When he writes to newspapers in this city, he writes as a St. Louisan, but when he writes the Detroit press he uses a Detroit date line. For perusal in the Philadelphia Inquirer he writes under a Philadelphia date, though the identical text printed in the New York Tribune purports to have been written by a New Yorker.

He says it is unfair to charge Huerta with the deaths of Madero and Suarez; that "progressives" compose the new Mexican Cabinet; that American newspapers should leave him alone until he pacifies the country and not cry "Down with the assassin." The Americans must resign over Madero's downfall and most complacent at Huerta's treachery were Americans looking for railroad, mining and land concessions in Mexico or contracts under the Government. Their harvest under Madero was small. What is Mr. O'Halloran's interest? With unimportant changes, his letter might serve as a defense of Abdul the Damned.

Is his name really O'Halloran? What genuine O'Halloran would try to grab such a chance for beautiful fighting as is now presented in Mexico? Investigation having shown that from 20 to 60 per cent of the inmates of prisons and reformatories are mentally deficient, and that a majority of those condemned for crimes and misdemeanors are physically below standard, punishments, such as damp, dark dungeons with a starvation diet, only tend to make matters worse, by further depressing the vitality of the victim. Such punishments are least called for in a workhouse, most of whose inmates are there because of poverty.

A RIGHTS-FOR-FATHERS MOVEMENT.

Creditable to his sense of justice but hopeless is the effort to force proper recognition for neglected, unappreciated father, inaugurated at a Chicago medical meeting by Dr. James Russell Price, who must of course be himself a father. He insists that the paternal influence in the evolution of race is more important than that of mothers. "As the father, so the child," he quotes approvingly. The attributes that make for good are almost invariably inherited from the masculine parent, he says, as well as the attributes that make for unsuccessful and evil lives. The character of the men of this generation determines the character of both the men and women of the next generation. So Dr. Price asserts.

Father will have a moment of gratification while he reads this tribute, to which moment he is entitled, and he will then wearily turn his attention to ways of earning the contents of the next pay envelope, which after all is the real civilizing force in these times. Perhaps after the lapse of years he may get the recognition which Dr. Price contends should be his. It will be a long time in coming, however. Father won't organize "rights-for-fathers" parades. He won't mob cabinet officers or explode bombs or burn country homes or pour molasses into mail boxes. He refused to riot even when they began staging the libelous "Everybody Works But Father" ballad.

The present age is too busy according rights to mother to accord any to father or even to pay very much attention to him.

SECRETARY REDFIELD'S WARNING.

William C. Redfield, Secretary of Commerce and Labor, answers the threat of the National Association of Employing Lithographers to reduce wages, discharge workmen and extend hours of labor should the tariff schedule affecting lithographic goods be adopted, with the statement that if this policy is put into effect it may be the duty of his department to investigate the business methods of the employers.

Not only would it be sound policy for Secretary Redfield to investigate the business methods of tariff beneficiaries who meet tariff cuts with wage cuts and lockouts, but it is sound policy to begin his investigation before the tariff bill has been passed.

The American people are entitled to know the facts about the business of interests which are enjoying protection and threaten curtailment and wage cuts whenever an attempt is made to curtail their profitable privileges. The people are entitled to know whether tariff beneficiaries really need protection at the public's expense and whether their tax privileges are merely fattening their profits or are benefiting the workmen. The people have a right to know whether the expensive protection they are giving tariff beneficiaries is really needed to keep their industries alive and whether the warnings have a sound foundation.

American capacity and energy must have degenerated if American industry cannot survive without enormous subsidies in the form of protective tariffs. Our artificial coddling and bottle-feeding methods have had a sad effect on American qualities if the reduction of excessive tariffs leaves American producers and manufacturers helpless against outside competitors in the home as well as the foreign markets. If we are developing a lot of industrial and commercial mollycoddles by tariff wetnursing the sooner we know it the better.

The most conspicuous factor in the tax increase issue at the City Hall is the Republican boss using threats and inducements to control the Municipal Assembly. It is an inopportune occasion for bossism's big stick. The results may be disastrous to the administration.

OPTIMIST J. J. HILL.

Nothing even resembling a menace to profitable industrial operations and the continued employment of American workers is seen by James J. Hill. He declared so at Washington, where he is located the publication office of the Congressional Record, which for weeks has been filled with G. O. P. predictions of early disaster. He does not see a cloud as large as a man's hand on the sky of prosperity and when James J. Hill is unable to discern at least a cloud of that size above the horizon, it can be assumed that none exists. He is an optimist as to the immediate future, seeing signs of increased rather than diminished prosperity.

However, Mr. Hill utters a warning about crediting "false rumors of industrial upheaval." A danger always present in this country, he says, is that the people may attach importance to such reports, though originating in irresponsible quarters. Among other things, Mr. Hill means by this is that nobody should pay the slightest attention to the alarmist speeches of stand-pat Congressmen on the tariff bill.

The "false rumors" to whose circulation they are reduced should be discredited in business as completely as the orators are discredited in politics.

Attorney-General Barker's eulogy of newspaper aid in the fire insurance crisis is appreciated, but is it so certain yet that he has won the fight?

OUR HEART IS WITH THE BOYS.

Sufferings usually move us, but the following appeal to our sympathy has missed its mark: To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Why is not ballplaying on small lots next to residences suppressed? Why should some of us be annoyed beyond measure, menaced from the beginning to the end of the season with the fear and dread of being struck by a ball while working in our gardens. Any request or appeal to desist is answered with insolent blackguardism and then the ball must be recovered let the consequence be what they may to your fence or garden.
More policemen instead of more salary would benefit.

Nothing distresses us more than the duty of improving our friends, especially when they are suffering and looking to us for relief, but the painful truth is that in this case our sympathies are all with the small boys who are causing the suffering by playing the ball.

There is a good deal to be said in favor of boys playing ball on a vacant lot. They keep the weeds down, for one thing. Not only the weeds on the lot, but they keep the weeds from growing rank in their own characters. When Utopia arrives, of course, there will be plenty of municipal playgrounds and no vacant lots, but in the meantime boys on the lots are a wholesome thing for the neighborhood, to say nothing of providing a healthful reminder to grown-up ascetics that they were once noisy children themselves. Some of these same very good people who are intolerant of children make no objection to keeping a dog and letting it run the streets without a muzzle.

The vacant lot has had its honorable share with the public school in the making of good citizens, and done more than the public school in making the national game with its patriotic associations. The cradle of genius, the vacant lot has furnished most of the stars of the diamond. The baseball game on the lot stands among the noblest of our great free institutions, at the cost only of a few broken windows and the broken cathedral calm of neighborhoods that might be otherwise hopelessly dull. But the boys ought to be courteous.

The United States loses the services of a resourceful, efficient man in the retirement of Labor Commissioner Charles P. Neill to devote his abilities to the cause of the Guggenheims.

Dr. Friedmann might have assured himself a longer period of favorable publicity by telling it to the Danes first.

Dr. M. A. Ellis' denunciation in the Missouri Medical Association of the practice of making medical and other appointments in the State hospitals a part of the political patronage of the administration and conferring them for party service.

ice rather than professional attainments was timely and fully justified. With the aid of Missouri physicians this abuse can be reformed.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Business Woman Answers Archbishop Glennon. To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Reading the account of the Rev. Archbishop Glennon's sermon expressing his ideas of woman's "sphere," will say that I am a mother with two children; get up at 5:30 every morning, prepare breakfast, go downtown on the crowded street car, perhaps hang onto a strap, have smoke blown into my face and ashes over my clothes; sit in an office with a smoker of a vile pipe, work all day, go home and prepare supper for myself and children. Have been going through this schedule for about six years.

These men, at home and at business, are our lawmakers. I fall to see how my assisting them in lawmaking (lawmaking for my children) would be any more contaminating than my association with them in a business way. Perhaps the Reverend Archbishop still insists that I ought to be at home (on a pedestal) taking care of my children. If the Reverend Archbishop can tell me how I might bring about this happy conclusion, I should be perfectly willing to try it. In the meantime my $75 per certainly helps, and until someone can show me a better way, I will hold on to it.

The home woman who helps make laws is not exposed to the contaminating influences that Archbishop Glennon would have us believe. She meets in politics the men that her sister in business life meets. She meets her own father, husband, brother or son as the case may be. I will say for myself and the many other womanly business women I know that I have not seen the dire effects that the Reverend Archbishop would have us believe follow, and I believe that every woman who is awakened to the needs of better laws protecting our children and our homes is a better woman and a better mother. ORTIA.

Some Satisfied Hello Girls.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I would like to say a few words in regard to the harsh criticism made against the Southwestern Telegraph and Telephone Co., formerly the Bell Telephone Co., which I consider a great injustice to the company. I have been an operator for five years and have always found the telephone company to do the right and just thing for the operators. There are a few dissatisfied operators, but the majority appreciate what the company is doing and have done for them.
FOREST EXCHANGE OPERATOR.

Complete the Bridge.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Your editorial on May 10 entitled "Muddling the Bond Issue" is timely and to the point. Your point is well taken and will "stand the test" in law. Now is the time to settle the question for good. Shall the municipal free bridge be completed without any delay or litigation whatever? That is the all important question. The Democratic and Republican party stand for its prompt completion without much ceremony or "red tape." The business men, manufacturers, all industries, laboring men, the sleeping and traveling public, the home maker and taxpayer and the "unobstructionist" and progressive citizen all want and are anxious to see the bridge completed without further delay. It can be done and will be done. The great city of St. Louis is fully able and rich enough to do it. Now let the workmen and engineers go to work and complete it, regardless of any "ifs," "sorsheds" or "buts" about it. The city of the people is: "Now complete the bridge, Mayor Kiel, and future great St. Louis and its taxpayers will stand back of you to a man!"

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
The St. Louis Society for the Relief and Prevention of Tuberculosis thanks you for your generous support and assistance on Red Ribbon Day. Without your help the collection could not have been as successful as it was. I wish to add my personal thanks for your hearty co-operation.

Watch St. Louis Grow!

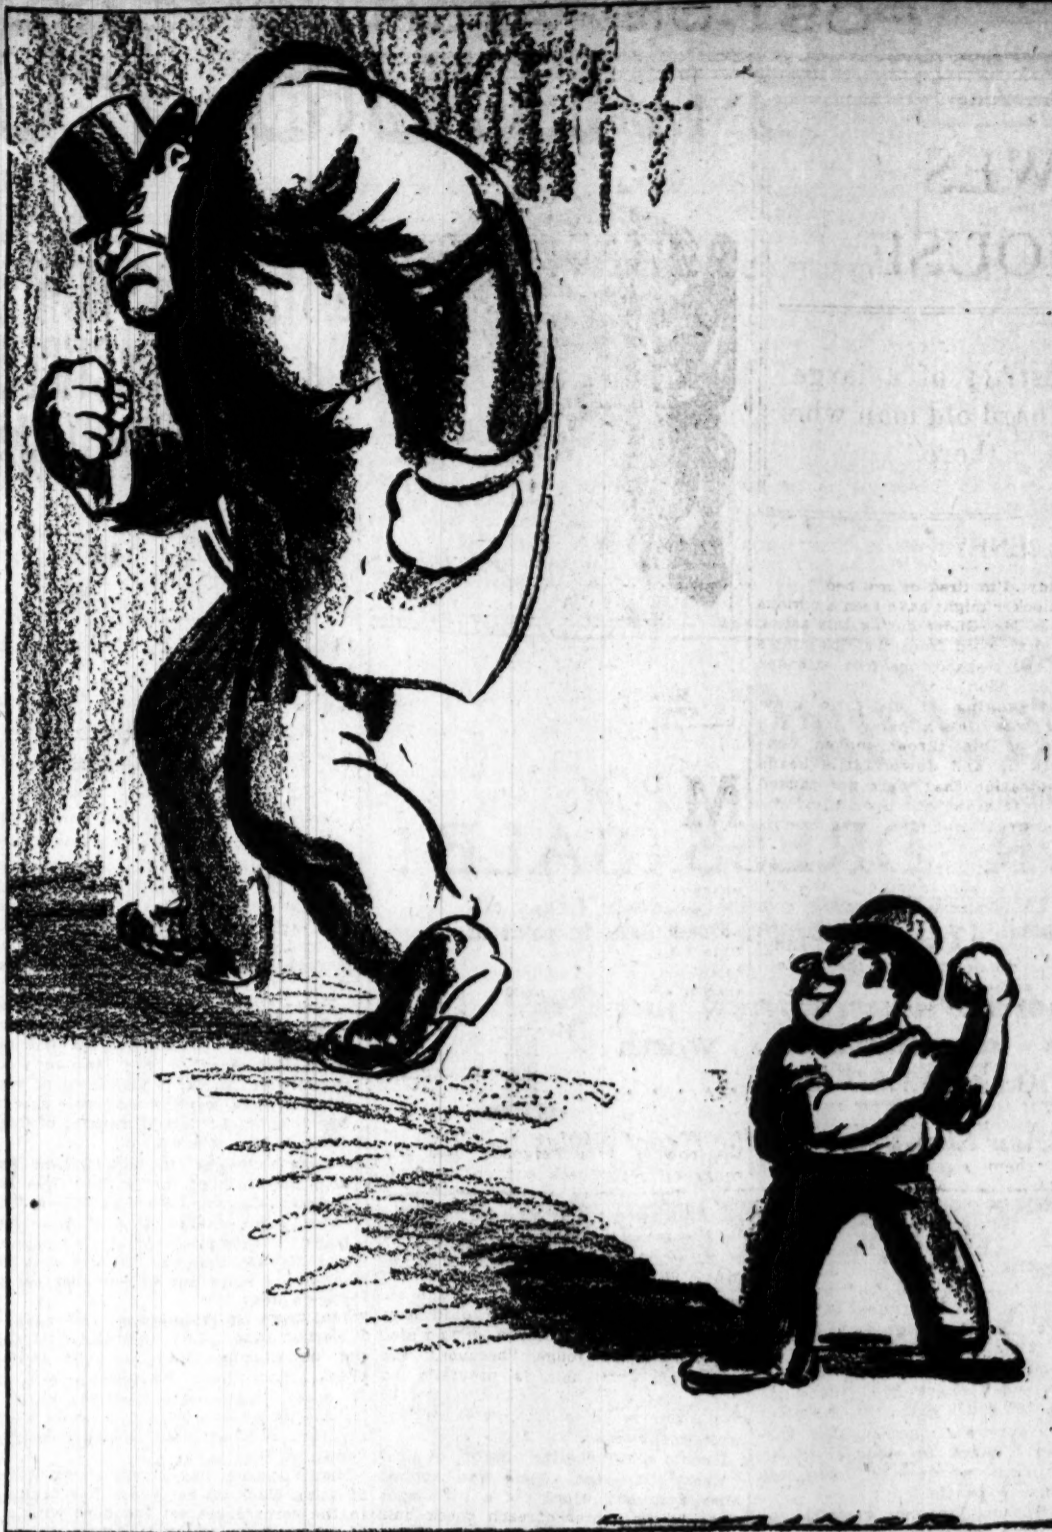

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Again we hear the everlasting foolish question, "What's the matter with St. Louis?" to which I, and any other clear-minded person would reply, "What's the matter with the St. Louis-ans?" "Why is St. Louis not progressing like other cities?" "What's the matter with St. Louis?" "Why is it that I would also answer, "Because St. Louis is growing steadily and not taking 'jumps,' like other 'mushroom' cities."
It gives me great pleasure to note the change that has taken place on Olive street within the last five years. With a great deal of admiration and civic pride, I gaze at the largest office building in the world, and only one block below, the new Monward Building, a structure of 30 stories, is being built to complete the "skyscraper row." One may procure the best view from Fourth street.

St. Louis is now being recognized as the third largest dry goods market in the country—rightly so. In fact, in five more years St. Louis will excel Chicago, owing to the rich Southern trade our "town" is now procuring. Even merchants from Indiana and Northern Illinois make St. Louis their buying headquarters. "Wake up, 'knockers.'" It don't cost you any more to convert yourselves into "boosters." The present trouble lies in the fact that you see too far, that you overlook your own town and watch the progress of other "mushroom" cities. Let each one be a "boosting club," and sing the praises of the coming Convention City of the United States.
"A 16-year-old booster." ISADORE WHISPER.

A Complaint From the City Sanitarium.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I am a widow and have to work to support my baby and mother. I was working in a shoe factory for $4.50 a week. I was glad to get a position as attendant at the city sanitarium at $25 a month and since I have been there I have been paying 25 cents, 50 cents and even dollars almost every week for tickets to attend church and feasts and for religious jubilees and anniversaries and for candles. Mr. Editor, I am a Catholic and it seems wrong to allow superior attendants to go around in a public institution and solicit money, especially from us who need every cent we earn. I feel like other people that we must give or gain the ill will of the supervisors. I feel sure Dr. Johns don't know of the constant begging each week and always around pay days. I can't report to him without first telling the supervisor.

I appeal to you, Mr. Editor, to print this letter with your "Letters From the People," and when our next pay day comes our money will be protected. Sometime ago the supervisors had their salary almost doubled and they don't do any more work than usual and the attendants who really have to do all the hard work from 6 in the morning until 10 at night get $20 and a poorer quality of food than the supervisors, who have their job through political pull. Visitors to the insane patients know what hard work we do and all say we ought to get more money.

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the Post-Dispatch by Clark McAdams.

AT BABEL.

ONE evening in Panama, when the sun was sinking low, We watched the human tide come in to claim its meed of rest; The hot and dusty labor trains were running to and fro, And the world came up from its day of toil with its eyes upon the West.

There were coolies from the East
With the golden glow of teak,
And great French coaches to throng the feast
From distant Martinique,
There were yellow men and fellow men,
And Indians and Roms,
And Babel was itself again
Beneath the royal palms.

THE sea was very soft and blue, and the breeze was cool and sweet
As the world streamed out beneath the palms to mingle with the night;

It went with laughter on its lips, and light and flying feet,
And all men were as children in that moment of delight.

Down the narrow city street
Where the dusk was rushing in,
And the bubble of the races
Made a wild and merry din.
There were weary men and cheery men,
The night had made them free—
And Babel was itself again
Beside the southern sea.

THERE were nations four and seventy in that streaming host—
The blood of Englishmen was there, and the velvet eyes of Spain;
The mongrel breeds of Antilles, and the proudest earth can boast,
Side by side on the terraces of Babel once again.

There were sturdy Japanese
With their plodding little stride,
And men from all the seven seas
And continents beside.
All happy in the night,
That best of human balm,
And Babel was itself again
Beneath the royal palms.

THROUGH THE SCREEN DOOR.

A careless tramp appeared at the door.
"I've lost my coat, and I am ashamed
To go around looking for work without one," he said.

The man of the house regarded him
Quietly for a moment.
"I think if you went around with your coat off, you would be more likely to get something to do than if you had it on," he said.

Temporarily overcome by the other's logic, the tramp withdrew from the argument and went off down the street.

ANCIENTS HAD SLOT MACHINES.

From the Strand Magazine.
Hero of Alexandria (about 155 B. C.) was an ingenious inventor of mechanical toys. In his works, "Pneumatic" and "Automata," he describes some hundred small machines that he probably never carried beyond the "model" stage. These included steam engine, which is said to be of the form now known as Avery's patent, and a double forcing pump to be used as a fire engine.

Hero was also the inventor of the automatic delivery, or penny-in-the-slot machine. He describes "a sacrificial vessel which flows only when money is introduced." When the coin is dropped through the slit it falls on one end of a balanced horizontal lever, which being depressed, opens a valve suspending from a chain at the other end, and the water begins to flow. When the lever has been depressed to a certain angle the coin falls off, and the valve, being weighted, returns to its seat and cuts off the supply.

FOOTBALL VS. TENNIS.
From Woman's Home Companion.
There was once a United States tennis champion named Robert D. Wrenn. Wrenn was also at one time a famous football player, in the days when there were 35 minute halves to that game. And in speaking of the two, Mr. Wrenn once said:

"There is no comparison in the strain the two games put upon the body. It is much easier to go through two 35 minute halves of football than to play a five-set championship match of tennis."

To be sure, the game can be played in a lackadaisical manner. But it isn't really tennis.

DISCREDITED TARIFF CRITICS.
From the Indianapolis News.
The best opinion today is that the tariff bill in practically its present form will become a law before the end of July, possibly by the end of June. So far, the opposition has been singularly weak and ineffective. Perhaps, this is because it has mostly come from men responsible for the present tariff law, which has been repudiated by the country. These men had their chance, and they threw it away. The men now in charge hold a commission from the people, and they represent the people rather than special interests.

Justice According to Geography.
From the Philadelphia Inquirer.
Comparing the case of that New York father who received 5 cents damages for the death of his 14-year-old son with that of the Western woman who was given $15,000 for the loss of two toes leads one to conclude that justice is a matter of geographical location.

Names of Twins Mixed.
From the London Evening Standard.
A woman stated at a Hackney inquest that her husband's Christmas names were James Jonathan or Jonathan James, she did not know which. "You see," she explained, "he was one of twins, and they got mixed up a bit."

From Spoor's Criminal.
The very interesting thing to us just now is that the only remaining titel of free and unlimited debate upon this continent is the Senate of the United States.

A Z.—Don't mix sets. Guests should have congeniality with the two brightest people together. Don't put a man next to his wife, or on the same side of the table. The host leads the way to the dining-room with the woman guest of honor on his right arm, the other guests follow the men whose they are to escort, and she herself bringing up the rear with the man guest of honor. The waitress stands behind the hostess' chair, and the men escorts are to the waitress' right. For formal dinner lead off with a clam or grapefruit cocktail, clam on two halves, or a fruit salad. The frappe or simply a canape of some sort, or an appetizer like anchovies or caviare on toast. The service of place plates are in place when your dinner is announced, while the introductory appetizers are served on smaller plates set on the service plate. When the soup is served, the waitress removes the fruit or shellfish plate, leaving the service plate. Then comes the soup, which is brought in a plate at a time and set on the service plate before each guest. When the soup plate is removed the service plate is still in position. No one should be allowed to sit without a plate, either hot or cold, before him, even if letting a course pass. We have had a waitress brought in for the fish, entree or roast the service plate is exchanged for the hot one, the hot plate is exchanged for the cold one when the salad is served. After the salad everything is cleared away, hors d'oeuvres, small silver and the like, the water glass alone remaining. The rumble are brushed from the table into a plate and the dessert is served. Black coffee completes the meal.

THE BOWES STREET HOUSE

IT is in the poor folks' district of a large city and was owned by a hard old man who found something very strange there.

BY LEONORE E. CHENEY.

WHILE Gilder bent eagerly over the "quarterly report," his agent sat back and watched him uneasily.

"Ahem!" Gilder shut his spectacles with a snap and glared at his agent. "I see profits far below normal again, sir? One would imagine, from the amount of these plumbers' bills that we were personally supporting the Amalgamated Plumbers' Union! I notice in the Bowes street house alone the bill for plumbing is over $300 for the past year."

"I have been wanting to speak to you about the Bowes street place," began Burson, extracting a letter from the file at his elbow. "You see, Mr. Gilder, the Bowes street house is in a pretty bad condition; there's been quite a little agitation recently in some of the papers about an epidemic of typhoid down there, and this morning I got this letter from the head of the social settlement in the district."

"More likely it's due to their own dirt and filth," snapped Gilder, pacing restlessly up and down. "But I look to you, Burson, to straighten this out. What's what I pay for, and I expect you to do it."

"I have been doing my best. I intend to go down there myself this afternoon and look the house over. I am having a plumber meet me there to submit estimates."

At the word "estimates," a sudden gleam of suspicion lit in Gilder's eyes. "Estimates—graff! Ah!"

"I think I'll just go down with you. Burson's dimes was evident."

"Oh, Mr. Gilder, I'm sure you wouldn't like that! You've no idea how filthy and vile the streets and people are down there. It wouldn't do at all to go in your car, in the present state of things, and I'm quite sure you wouldn't relish the ride on the street cars."

This served, of course, to fix the idea only the more firmly in Mr. Gilder's mind. He would certainly go, if that Burson might be certain.

Once having made the resolution, he forged calmly ahead, but before he had traversed half the distance from the street car to the entrance of the Bowes street house he had begun to realize some of the difficulties of which Burson had spoken. For one thing it was hot—the middle of the day—and the smells were almost overpowering.

Hawkers, with cans of lukewarm water in which floated half-cooked ears of green corn; others with slices of watermelon out in the early morning and now covered with the filth and flies accumulated throughout the day's travel through the dusty streets; others with the deadly cornucopia or the equally disastrous spotted fruit—all vied with each other in the raucous violence of their cries.

Added to this was the roar of the not distant elevated, the screaming of innumerable babies, and the shrill whistles of gangs of street gamins, making a very lifeless din of dirt and confusion. Gilder was glad to turn into the comparative quiet of the Bowes street house.

Once inside, Burson took the lead and began at once the tour of inspection. The house had been designed for a far better class of tenants than now found a haven within its walls. It had, originally, two suites of apartments of five rooms each on either side of the narrow hall which bisected the house. But long ago these five rooms had been divided so that now they formed three suites each, two of two rooms and a single room.

They were making the last rounds on the top floor when they heard a voice far below, hailing Mr. Burson. The strength and assurance of it spoke eloquently of a full dinner pail.

"Ah, that must be Manders, the plumber," exclaimed Burson, hastening toward the dark and rickety stairs. "I'll see me one moment, Mr. Gilder. I'll bring him right up."

Left to himself, Gilder started slowly toward the narrow window at the far end of the hall. Suddenly a door was flung open halfway down the hall, and the anxious face of one of the amateur nurses from the settlement peered out. At the sight of Gilder her face cleared and she sprang forward eagerly.

"Oh, sir, I'm so glad to see you! My patient is very sick—typhoid—I must have help. The doctor is somewhere in the building, probably with Casey's little girl on the first floor. Bring him as quick as you can." Then as she realized the blank look on Gilder's face, anxiety again puckered her smooth brow.

"Oh, you don't think you can find him? What shall I do? I must—I know. You stay here—keep very quiet—he's delicious and won't notice the change. Don't excite him, whatever you do," and before Gilder could voice all his protest she had pushed him through the door and sped down the hall. Nauseated and highly indignant, Gilder looked about him.

The work of the volunteers from the settlement was apparent here, for the room was far cleaner than any Gilder had seen in the house. The patient lay on one of the settlement hospital cots, which, with a deal-table and one chair, formed the only furniture in the room.

Gilder was a stranger to sick rooms, and a voracious curiosity stirred him as his glance rested on the form of the sick man. In the dim light his features were barely distinguishable; his thin frame twitched restlessly under the light sheet. Gilder half turned to go, when suddenly the man sat bolt upright and stretched out his arms in the piteous appeal of childhood.

"Daddy, daddy!" he wailed. "Take me

MAKING UP OF ELSIE FERGUSON FOR 'BONITA'

As seen by Eleanor Schorer.

MISS ELSIE FERGUSON plays the part of Bonita in "Arizona." Bonita is a fresh, wholesome, almost tomboy sort, with a breezy manner and red cheeks. So Miss Ferguson's "make-up" has that quality.

I get so tired saying that the "make-up" is started with cold cream that each time I see an actress apply that inevitable article it discourages me. Still that is the way almost every one does begin and Miss Ferguson proved no exception, only that instead of rubbing most of it off again she lets a lot of it remain. Over this she makes two big round spots of red grease paint on each cheek and then with a large puff of powder covers them over. On top of the powder Miss Ferguson uses dry rouge on each cheek and on her eyelids. Then comes another enveloping cloud of powder over all and on top of that some more dry rouge. This is repeated about four times or until the pink and white are perfectly blended on the face. "Pink and white" is the effect, but in truth Miss Ferguson uses quite a dash of color face powder and also a deep crimson rouge, "because," she explained, "my skin is naturally so white that should I use white powder the result would be an awful chalky, whitewashy color."

I could easily see the wisdom of this. Every time the rouge was applied Miss Ferguson wiped off a little spot right in the center of each cheek half way between the jaw and cheek bones.

"When I first began to 'make up,'" she told me, "I used to do it just like a hundred others. Powder, rouge and cosmetic used in their respective places was about all 'make up' meant to me. But after a while I began to study my face, its lines and its coloring (that is when make up becomes an art), and I learned that I had naturally a thin, not unbecoming white spot in each cheek. Since then I am always careful to make those little rougous spots. In this part I use quite some rouge on my face because of the youth and vivacity of Bonita."

Miss Ferguson has a very clever way of using black on her eyes. She begins in the corners nearest the nose with a big dab from which is drawn a line marking that part of the eyelid just where the ball fits into the socket. The rest of the lid is left its natural color excepting around the very rims of the eyes directly above the lashes. These lines are chosen to make the eye sockets look deep, the eyeballs themselves look round and the daubs in the corners give the nose sharpness, narrowness and straightness. The lashes are not beaded, but simply darkened with thick cosmetic.

After the eyes comes the mouth, which is made red, but no fuller than Miss Ferguson's own, and following the mouth is the hair.

"It's a wonder to me," exclaimed Miss Ferguson, "that more actresses do not complain of the cure of their hair. Why I have to have mine washed so often that it is all coming out. Yet if I do not have it washed frequently it looks perfectly dreadful, acts most unruly

THE FOLK WHO WRITE OUR BEST SELLERS

OWEN JOHNSON and his wife are making their winter home in the Palazzo Bombacci, in Florence, where Mr. Johnson is writing "The Salamander," while Mrs. Johnson studies operatic singing.

Beatrice Harraden's present visit to America is her first since that part of the nineties when "Ships That Pass in the Night" was on every book stall.

Elizabeth Neft, who wrote "Miss Wealthy, Deputy Sheriff," is in charge of the Haymarket district social settlement in the foreign quarter of Cleveland.

Many readers suppose that Elizabeth Robins, who has just issued that remarkable white slave novel, "My Little Sister," is an Englishwoman. She was born in Louisville, Ky., and educated at a seminary in Zanesville, O. To several of her earlier stories she attached the pen-name "C. E. Raimond." She is an active suffragist and clubwoman. She is remembered for her impersonating Heddah Gahler in Ibsen's play of that name, she having begun her career as an actress.

Another first-novel girl out of the South is Della Campbell McLeod, whose "The Maiden Manifest" is just published. Formerly of the Baltimore News staff, Miss McLeod is now working in New York newspaperdom.

Holman Day has become rear-commodore of the Portland (Me.) Yacht Club, power boat division, and will tread proudly, whenever the weather permits, the deck of his own Dary Jones.

It is hard to reconcile the fact of that delightful American story, "Mary Cary," with the other fact that the story's author, Kate Langley Bosher, has been lecturing on Russia to clubwomen.

Sir Gilbert Parker, in the preface to the new edition of his "Sons of the Mighty," has this to say: "I believe that

O'Nan has debarbed a rich man called to his coachman and said:

"Pat, my fine man, I'm going on a far, far longer journey than you ever drove me."

WAR ON FLY CUTS THE DEATH RATE AS POPULATION GROWS

Health Commissioner Attributes Condition to the Protection of Milk and Meat.

Dr. E. W. Saunders' warning against the fly and the open garbage wagon, as causes of infantile paralysis, is endorsed by Health Commissioner Starkloff. Dr. Saunders' views were set forth in a paper which he read Wednesday before the Missouri Medical Association, and an outline of which appeared in the Post-Dispatch of that day.

Dr. Starkloff also said he agreed with Dr. Saunders in the belief that infantile paralysis (poliomyelitis) may be occasioned by "limberneck" in chickens, or by diseases of hogs. But the Health Commissioner said he did not believe any chickens which have died of "limberneck" were sold here for food.

The Health Commissioner also agrees with the St. Louis physician in the statement that infantile paralysis originates more commonly in the country and suburban localities than in the city. In 1912, 28 cases were reported in St. Louis.

Death Rate Diminishing.
"The city death rate is diminishing, in face of the increase of population," said Dr. Starkloff, "and this is due, I believe, to the work that has been done for the protection of the milk and meat supplies, and against flies and mosquitoes."

"The delay in passing the appropriation bill is keeping us from making the needed start on the anti-mosquito and anti-fly campaigns, for which we hope to get $7500, and for which we need $2000. Honolulu spent $150,000 in a year in this work."

"We have sent out literature warning against the fly as a common carrier of disease, and we are going after the breeding places of the mosquitoes, particularly the tin cans and washboilers on vacant lots. Around the Tamm Glue plant trillions of these insects are bred. We seek to prevent the breeding process by destroying the larvae with coal oil."

Tainted Meat Destroyed.
"We have four meat inspectors out destroying tainted meat and fish, and last December they destroyed more than three-fourths of a ton of such matter. Chickens are sent here alive as a rule, and the commission men would not accept any that were suffering from limberneck. I have never known of any such chickens being sold for food, though I have seen live chickens which had the disease."

Dr. Starkloff, while approving the suggestion that garbage wagons should be screened, did not suggest any means of bringing about such a change here at present. This would require new legislation, and new rules for drivers and wagons.

THE REV. Z. B. T. PHILLIPS, the new rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, and Mrs. Phillips, gave a "rectory house warming" Wednesday afternoon in their new home, 3684 Lindell boulevard, which the parish recently bought and had done over for a rectory. Several hundred guests called during the hours from 4 to 7 o'clock.

Prof. Lowell of Harvard, who is coming for the seventh annual meeting of the Harvard Clubs, which will be held here next Friday and Saturday, will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Markham during his stay.

Friday night there will be a dress rehearsal of the musical comedy, which was written by Eugene Angert, with the music by Max Zach. It will be a private view and the only entertainment for the Harvard men which women will be permitted to attend.

Mrs. Jacob P. Tirrell of 5291 Washington boulevard is at Hot Springs, Va., for several weeks.

Mrs. Phil Chew and her daughter, Miss Virginia Chew, will sail Saturday from Boston for Europe, where Miss Chew will study music. She has a voice of great promise and will devote the next three years to cultivating it. Mrs. Chew will return in the autumn.

Mrs. Elise Boeckler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Boeckler of 441 Laclede avenue, will return from Miss Wright's school at Bryn Mawr, where she has been all winter, in about a fortnight. Miss Boeckler will be one of the debutantes next winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hunt Jr. of 406 McPherson avenue entertained at dinner Thursday evening in honor of Miss Virginia Zelig, whose marriage Saturday evening will be one of the fashionable weddings of the spring.

The guests, who included the bride party, went in motors out to a farmhouse in the country, famous for its good cooking, and where the tables are spread on a wide porch.

Mrs. Hunt will be matron of honor. Miss Prudence Zellig will be her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Misses Miriam Benoit, Mary Turner, Laura Smith, Charlotte Filley and Miss Austine Barton and Julia Caldwell of Louisville, Ky.

The ceremony will take place at the home of the bride, 37 Kingsbury place, at 4 o'clock, and will be followed by a large reception.

AUTO IS CRUSHED BETWEEN 2 CARS, DRIVER ESCAPES

One Car Has to Be Lifted to Get Him Out, but Bruises Are W. M. Kier's Only Injuries.

Walter M. Kier, a salesman for the Laclede Gaslight Co., residing at 4004A Shaw avenue, narrowly escaped death Thursday evening when a 5-passenger touring car driven by him was crushed between two Houdon cars at Tenth and Locust streets. The machine was wrecked and it was necessary to lift one of the cars from the track to extricate Kier.

Hundreds of persons who witnessed the accident, expecting to see Kier taken out seriously injured, were surprised to find he had escaped with only a slight bruise on his left foot and a torn shoe. Kier was driving west on Locust street shortly after 6 p. m., and turned to go south on Tenth street, when he observed an eastbound car approaching. Seeing that he could not cross ahead of the car, he changed his course and started west again just in front of a westbound car. The eastbound car side-swiped the machine and knocked it against the westbound car. At that juncture the front platforms of both cars were opposite each other, and before the motormen could stop the machine was caught between the two cars and crushed.

Kier believes he must have stood up in his machine when the crash occurred, clear of both cars, and then fell among the wreckage.

MAN WHO "TALKED BACK" TO CONDUCTOR IS FREE

Court Discharges J. W. Millam, Arrested in Controversy Over Car Transfer.

J. W. Millam, 65 years old, of 1435A Clara avenue, who was arrested for talking back at a street car conductor who refused him a transfer, was acquitted Friday in the Clark Avenue Police Court by Judge Kimmel.

Millam is vice-president and manager of the Millam Concrete Pump Co. The conductor, William L. Long, testified that Millam got on a Park car at Compton avenue and asked for a special transfer on Grand avenue, entitling him to a second transfer. Long said he told him he could not issue such a transfer, and that Millam became abusive.

Millam testified that the conductor made his refusal in an abrupt manner, which angered him, and he said he took off his glasses and told the conductor to "take a punch" at him if he felt like it. He denied having used profanity or abusive language, to such an extent as to disturb other passengers.

VICE-PRESIDENT RULES HIMSELF OUT OF ORDER

Sustains Republican Senator's Exception to His Partisan Comment on Applause.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Vice-President Marshall ruled himself out of order in the Senate today during the free sugar debate. When Senator James Brewster, of New York, made a reference to the galleries by pointed remarks about the Republicans, Senator Gallinger demanded that order be restored.

"The shoe was on the other foot the other day and the Vice-President cautioned the galleries," responded Marshall, "and he will do so today."

Gallinger noted an exception and sat down. At the conclusion of the debate, the Vice-President announced that he had been out of order in his remark and Gallinger affably accepted what he considered an apology.

"BURGLARS" SANG CANARY

So Woman Thought; Husband Said, "Pooh!" She Was Right.

NEW YORK, May 16.—"I've always loved the canary, but my husband didn't," said Mrs. Samuel Levin at New Brunswick, N. J., "Last night I dreamed I heard canary birds singing. I woke up. My bird in the other room was singing. I thought, 'If Sam wakes up, he'll fuss about the bird. I must put it around the cage. But the bird never sings unless there is someone in the room. There must be a burglar in the house.' Sam woke up. I told him about the burglar theory, and he said, 'Pooh!'

Next morning Mrs. Levin found that she had been taken from her desk near the bird's cage. "My dear little birdie tried to give us the alarm," she said. "I've acted fierce toward that bird," said Levin. "I'm going to sing an apology to him."

NO MORE SPELLING BEES

JEFFERSON CITY, May 16.—The county school superintendents decided today to hold no more state spelling contests. It was thought that this might cause too much stress to be laid upon this subject to the neglect of other branches.

Next year the study of scientific agriculture in the public schools will be emphasized. M. Jordan of Seladina, known as the "corn man," talked seed corn selection today. He said that because of the agitation for better seed corn more good seed was planted this spring than at any time in the history of the state.

SPICIEST REPORT ISSUED

WASHINGTON, May 16.—One of the hottest and spiciest reports yet issued by a branch of the Government made its appearance today when the Department of Agriculture published the results of an investigation by the Bureau of Chemistry.

"Red Pepper" is the title of the report. All varieties of red peppers used in the United States are described and analyzed. The investigation was made to determine the normal composition of the various red peppers.

Extra Session for Levee Fund.

BACKACHE IS A DANGER SIGNAL

Kidney Troubles, Bladder Disorders, Rheumatism and Serious Diseases Follow.

There are other symptoms, such as pains in the region of the kidneys, nervousness, dizziness, tired and worn-out feeling, weak bladder, which are just as dangerous, for the slightest kidney derangement if neglected may develop into the deadly Bright's Disease, Dropsy, or Diabetes.

It is not only dangerous, but needless, for you to suffer and endure the tortures of these troubles, for the new discovery, Croxone, promptly ends all such misery.

There is no more effective remedy known for kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism, than this new scientific preparation, because it removes the cause. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and linings, cleans out the clogged up pores, neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter, that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause those terrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter the poison from the blood and drives it out of the system.

Three doses of Croxone a day, for a few days is often all that is ever needed to relieve the worst backache or overcome similar disagreeable disorders, and you can take it with the utmost confidence, that nothing on earth will so quickly reach the worst case of kidney, bladder trouble, or rheumatism.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. An original package costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case.—ADVERTISEMENT.

M. A. C. TO STAGE WESTERN TITLE MEET, JUNE 21

W. A. A. U. Officials Award Event to Local Club, Subject to K. C. A. C.'s Protest.

The Western A. A. U. track and field championship meet was awarded to the Missouri Athletic Club last night by the W. A. A. U. officials, subject to a protest from the Kansas City Athletic Club. The latter organization was not represented at the meeting and as a matter of courtesy to the up-state club, the meet was awarded with the understanding that the action could be rescinded if K. C. A. C. entered a protest. However, no protest is anticipated.

The M. A. C. officials announced they would stage the meet at C. B. C. campus on June 21. This is rather early for the championship meet, but the date was selected so that college runners returning from the East will be in position to compete and do their best. Many of the Eastern stars—notably Oliver Reller of Cornell and Hewitt Waggoner of Yale—will represent the M. A. C.

MARCH AND GALL TIED IN COCKED HAT MATCH

March of the Stifels and Gall of the Bentons tied for high honors in the city cocked hat tournament on the Royal alleys Thursday evening. They stopped on 62. The Stifels, however, were the winners of the match, 4 games to 1. The winners rolled a 47-2-2 average. The Druggists won the odd game from the Mohawks, while the Harrys took three of the five games from the Moss-Lowenhaupters. Young of the Harrys, with 61.3-5, was high man in these two matches.

C. B. C. Beats Missouri Valley. The Christian Brothers College team defeated the Missouri Valley College team, Marshall, Mo., Thursday, 2-1. Errors were responsible for most of the Brothers' run. Kelly and Manning for the C. B. C. battery, while Miner and Sturgeon worked for the Missourians.

WRAY'S COLUMN

No Flowers, Please—Yet.

NO need to build obituaries on the death of Pitcher Joe Wood's $10,000 per troy ounce arm. Far from having "gone dead"—bad English but good baseball—the principal asset of the Boston team showed unmistakable signs of life in trimming the Browns Thursday.

True, the member that set an American League record for victories won, last season, is not working in his world's championship form. It supplied the speed, as of yore, but the direction and twists were erratic. In short, Wood's arm is still sound, but an injury to his thumb, not yet thoroughly healed, interferes with his control.

It's merely a matter of days, or weeks—with the emphasis on the latter—until he regains the form of last season.

At present Wood has only one change—from a fast to a slow ball. Batsmen pass by the slow ball, wait for the fast one and—good night. At least that's what Detroit did. The Browns? Oh, well, that's different again. You can lead a mule to water but you can't make him drink.

Our Rag Time Ban.

BYRON BANCROFT JOHNSON is rubbing salt in the wounds of George Stovall. As to the verdict in the case of the Browns' famous splitter, Johnson is adding suspense to suspense—a wearing combination.

Almost two weeks have elapsed since the salivary degeneration was applied to the tall of Umpire Ferguson's coat. In that time three murder trials and an international peace congress could have been concluded.

But Ban continues to mark time. There are good and bad sides to this beneficent despotism of the Big Noise of baseball. One of the good sides does not consist in harrying a poor, second division team about the fate of its leader.

How the Graveyards Yawn!

THOSE who annually start to count ten on the veterans of the baseball world must be arm-weary telling off the "second" on some of our best "dead ones." Among those present who are now alive and well over whom the down-and-out time has been marked are such well-known springers as Hans Wagner, Christy Mathewson, Long Tom

BROWNS' ROOKIES ARE ALL AT SEA WITHOUT STOVALL

Team's Manager, From Grand Stand, Sees Where His Club Needs Him.

By Clarence F. Lloyd.

George Stovall is doing the Browns no good by sitting in the grand stand. It is true that the big first baseman has virtually been in charge of the team, despite his suspension by Ban Johnson, but some weird baseball has been exhibited by the Sportsman's Parkers during George's idleness.

It makes a difference in the play with Stovall in or out of the lineup. That doesn't necessarily mean that Thursday's 15-4 defeat wouldn't have come or that Walter Johnson wouldn't have been able to create his shutout record Wednesday, had Stovall been in the lineup. But the brand of baseball would have been sounder with Stovall directing the team from first base.

Can't Think for His Men.

"I have seen some queer things from the grand stand since my suspension," said Stovall Friday. "Most of my players are youngsters, some of them being strangers to most of the opposing players in the League. For that reason they do not know how to play for the different batters. That enables the other fellows to get a lot of base hits that would be turned into putouts if the men knew how to play for the opposition.

"That's where I could help most, by showing the men where to play for this and that batter. On the field I can do that; but I can't shout from the grand stand to the men in the outfield and wig-wag them where to stand."

It means a big difference in the pitching, also, whether Stovall be present or absent from the lineup. An old timer, he can tip off the twirlers to a lot of "info" about the man at the plate. And here also the fellow who can talk to the twirler, should the latter be faltering.

Stovall Holds Out Hope.

In the hope of being reinstated at an early date, Stovall is working out daily at Sportsman's Park. Many fans saw the big first baseman in a uniform Thursday for the first time in almost two weeks. He lingered longer on the field than usual.

Where They Grow.

MORE encouraging than the champions in sight is the evidence of activity on the playgrounds and high school and preparatory school fields. St. Louis is 50 per cent ahead in school athletic activity over five years ago. And the fruits are almost due for harvest.

AIN'T IT THE TRUTH? FOOL there was and he blamed the "ump." Even as you and I. He called him a robber, thief and chump. And told him to take a good run and jump. And shook his head at the old town pump. Even as you and I.

Well, Ferguson has gone, but the Browns lost just the same. What's the answer?

"Oh, say not so, Thou Art Magirl, I needed dough. So took a whiff. If we should meet, I care not when, I'll gladly beat You up again!"

It's a feast of a famine with Gus Williams. He either beats the stuffing out of the ball or the crowd out of the atmosphere.

Wood Has Speaker to Thank for Saving Him From Being Chased

SENATIONAL running catch of a line drive from Jack Johnson's bat by Tris Speaker made a big difference in the result of the alleged contest between the Browns and the Red Sox of Boston Thursday. Had Johnson's blow got past Speaker, it would have meant an additional pair of runs and the certain banishment of Joe Wood. But the Red Sox won, 15-4.

Wood, always a puzzle to the Browns in the past, was favored by fortune. In two rounds, his mates had slugged Earl Wellman for seven runs. That made it easy for Wood, who passed seven batters, more than he issued in all his games against the Browns a year ago.

Only five hits were made off Wood. He also fanned 10 batters. But he wasn't the Wood of 1912. The old slip to his delivery was missing. Had Wellman been able to fool the Sox the Browns would have tallied a whole lot more than four runs. But with a seven-run lead staring them from the very beginning they simply had to go up and try to knock the ball out of the lot.

Wood's finish seemed on the way in the fourth. For a starter, he struck out Right. Then Brief dropped a double in right, while Austin scratched an infield single. Wood wild-pitched Brief over and Austin to third. Jim scored, while Wagner pegged out Walsh. Then Joe passed Crossin and Adams, while Compton singled to center and Crossin scored while Adams and Pete moved up on Speaker's throw home. Wood was wobbling, but Speaker came to his aid with a great catch of Johnson's drive. That cut off a pair of runs.

Had the drive gone through it would have made the count 7-5, and someone besides Adams would have resumed the twirling.

Wellman simply had an off day. He would try to put a ball inside or outside and it would cut the heart of the plate. Result: A homerun, two triples, a double and three singles in two rounds.

Adams was hit hard in the sixth and ninth rounds and received wretched support. Compton didn't catch anything that came near him.

At last Ferguson and O'Loughlin were called away. In their places came Billy Evans and George Hildebrand. It's seldom that an umpire is cheered in St. Louis. But when the crowd saw the change in the umpires just before the game started, the glad hand was extended to the two new arbiters.

Duffy Lewis was hit on the crazy bone by one of Wellman's shoots in the third. He ambled down to first and turned it into a run, but retired later in favor of Olin Henriksen.

Shotton broke into the game as a pinch hitter in the third, when he batted for Wellman and got a life when Wagner made a low toss of his roller. Bert will likely return to the middle pasture Friday.

The defeat caused the shift of the Browns and Red Sox in the standing. The World's Champions moved up to fifth place and are a single point ahead of the Browns.

CUBAN MAY TAKE O'LEARY'S PLACE AT SHORT TODAY

Injury to Ex-Tiger Forces Manager Huggins to Make Important Shifts in Cards.

HAUSER TO PERFORM WHEN CARDS RETURN

ARNOLD HAUSER, the Cardinal shortstop, who has been laid up with an injured knee since March 15, when he was hurt in a practice game at Columbus, Ga., will be ready to play when Huggins' team returns May 29 from the East. Hauser has had the plaster cast removed and says his knee feels strong, although he will give it further rest.

Dr. Oney C. Raines, who is treating Hauser, told the Post-Dispatch Friday that there was no trouble with Arnold's knee. The right leg has been torn, but he is now healed, Dr. Raines says. There was no injury to the cartilages.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Manager Huggins of the Cardinals is not getting the breaks these days. The failure of Harmon and Salter to hit their stride has been a genuine source of worry, but more trouble came yesterday when Charley O'Leary pulled up lame in the eighth inning and was forced to retire. O'Leary hurt his knee in the spring series between the Browns and Cardinals and aggravated the ailment yesterday when he stumbled rounding first base. He was taken out and may not perform again for a week.

Hug switched Magee to short and put Ebbard in left and Cather in right after O'Leary was hurt. Whether this will prove a permanent switch is not known. Huggins may decide to use Alfredo Cabrera, the Cuban, at short, and leave Magee at his old stand. Cabrera is with the team and is regarded as a clever performer. He has yet to break into a big league box score.

The Cardinals lost a weird game yesterday, 8-4. Never was a ball club so killed with luck as were the Dodgers. It looked as though every possible combination fate could work against the St. Louisans was on the job from the beginning to end. Neither of the two main performers in the center of the diamond was at all effective. The total of his hits scored by the two clubs indicates that clearly enough, but there was only once in the game when the Cards got the right end of the break. That was when Koney's drive in the first inning took a short bound past Wheat.

Rivoire Dazzles Ringside Critics in Beating Magirl Winner a St. Louis Boy

Graduate of Philadelphia School of Fisticuffs Shows Best Form Seen Here Since Days of Old West End Club—Makes Rival Seem Slow.

By Harry S. Sharpe,

Referee for the Columbian Athletic Club and the Post-Dispatch Wrestling and Boxing Authority.

EDDIE RIVOIRE, who learned to box in the United States Navy and then made good as a professional in Philadelphia, sprang a surprise last night on members of the Columbian Athletic Club by out-boxing Art Magirl from start to finish of a six-round bout.

Rivoire is about the fastest and cleverest boxer of his weight seen here since the days of the West End Club when such glove wielders as "Philadelphia" Jack O'Brien, "Twin" Jack Sullivan and Hugo Kelly dazzled the spectators by scientific exhibitions.

Rivoire darts in and out with the speed of a lightweight, hits from any angle and measures his distance to the fraction of an inch. He knows when to hit, how to hit and his blows carry force.

Many times he sent Magirl reeling, with the latter's head bobbing in the air as if pulled by a cord from behind. He made Art swing and miss, sometimes by feet. Straight punches suffered the same fate. He unfurled a variety of hooks, swings, uppercuts and punches with a speed that bewildered Magirl and placed the latter's "haymaker" at a discount.

Magirl tried time and again to land hard swinging lefts and right crosses, but failed most of the time. Now and then he got one over, but it was only one at a time. Rivoire knows how to save himself when close pressed, and quickly falls in to smother punches that are barely started on their way or darts quickly out of distance. He is exceptionally fast on his feet, whether coming in or going out. When punched in the blocked cleverly and easily held his own in the exchanges. His punches were just as hard as Magirl's, and were better placed.

Rivoire has done most of his boxing in Philadelphia. The rough-and-ready ring tactics which are permitted to prevail there now and then cropped out and he had to be closely watched to prevent his bringing the Quaker City style conspicuously to the front in his bout here. He acted like a boxer who would like to hit just as long as he had a free hand to hit with, regardless of whether he is holding or being held.

He listened intently to the instructions before the bout began, asked a number of questions regarding the inter-

Harry Sharpe's Decisions.

EDDIE RIVOIRE of St. Louis, Neb., six rounds, catch weights—Rivoire the winner on points.

EDDIE MENNEY of San Francisco, Cal., vs. Nick "Kid" Peppers, eight rounds, 153 pounds at 8 o'clock p. m.—Menney the winner on points.

KNOCKOUT DELABAR vs. John Murray, both of St. Louis, six rounds, 118 pounds at 3 o'clock p. m.—Delabar the winner, stopped by referee in the fourth round to prevent further punishment of Murray.

pretation given the rules here, and throughout the bout I think he must have been doing something wrong. Magirl must have known after the first round that he was meeting an exceptionally clever boxer, but he took his medicine like a good sportsman and never resorted to the least thing for which he might be criticised.

As the bout went on and several rounds had been boxed it became apparent that Magirl was trying hard to swing a wallop that would be followed by the count, but his clever opponent was well able to care for himself and escaped all but two or three of the hardest blows sent out by Magirl.

The bout had been originally scheduled for eight rounds, but because of a misunderstanding regarding the weight it was reduced to six. When they met at the club last night Magirl had an advantage of about five pounds.

Then Rivoire wanted the bout out to four rounds. A reference to the articles of agreement disclosed the fact that there was no agreement as to what time the bout should be effected and the men agreed to go on for six rounds.

It was a noticeable fact to those who had seen Magirl in his recent bout against Marty Rowan at 148 pounds that the Nebraska boxer was not as fast last night, and this is taken as evidence that Magirl is probably at his best when trained to 148.

Rivoire claimed to weigh 147½ pounds when he weighed in at 5, but said he could easily make 145. This probably is true, as last night he appeared to be several pounds heavier than he is.

It was evident that he was not in best condition because he tired badly in the last round and resorted to more clinching and holding in this round than he had in all the others.

The thing for which Rivoire can be most criticised in his bout with Magirl was that he often swung low and had to be repeatedly cautioned against being careless in this respect.

In the semi-windup Eddie Menney evened up a previous score by outpointing Nick "Kid" Peppers. Menney is a clever boxer and a good ring general, but is said to be very careless about properly conditioning himself. He came into the ring last night looking good and lasted well throughout the eight rounds.

On the first occasion of his meeting with Peppers, Menney had drawn penalties for the frequency with which he violated the rules by hitting when holding.

He seemed to have profited by that experience and last night he made special effort not to do those things which might be counted against him.

On the other hand, Peppers did more clinching and holding than I have known him to do in any previous bout, and in many rounds his leads were nullified because he immediately followed them up by falling into a clinch. In addition to this, he was repeatedly cautioned for hitting while holding, sometimes wrapping his hand about Menney's neck and hitting with the other, which he knew to be a violation of the rules.

Another fault was that he showed a disregard of where his low swings and punches might land, and his attention frequently had to be called to this in an effort to have him swing his blows higher.

While Menney won on points, it was by no means a one-sided bout and was cleverly boxed, with Menney directing most of his blows to the head and Peppers flurrying the fusillade to the body. Menney had height and reach in his favor and used it to good advantage.

"Knockout" Delabar was so much better than John Murray in the preliminary bout that the referee deemed it best to stop it in the fourth round, when it became apparent that Murray was no match for his opponent. Neither boy suffered much punishment, but Delabar was easily the best boxer.

MARATHON TRUST OF CHICAGO WILL INVADE ST. LOUIS

Hatch, Kennedy and Co. Coming to Add Another to Long List of Victories.

By W. J. O'Connor.

Speaking of trusts and combinations in restraint of trade, we wish to cite the Chicago Marathon Co. of Chicago, an Illinois syndicate doing extensive business in the State of Missouri.

A coterie of sound-lunged gentlemen, some of them newspaper carriers and others bricklayers, have banded together a following which in the past eight years has exercised a monopoly in the business of winning distance races. Some of their offenses have been flagrant. They are coming here again Saturday to deprive aspiring St. Louis athletes of an equal chance of carrying away silver cups.

Several attempts have been made to smash this monopoly, but to no substantial avail. When the Missouri athletic clubs modified Marathon race starts from O'Leary, Mo., Saturday afternoon, among those to face the starter will be: W. J. Kennedy, Sidney Hatch, R. S. Stillwell, E. H. Farrell and Harry Stilwell, all of the Illinois A. C. of Chicago. They have won cups here before. Yes, just lamp the records of the M. A. C. Marathons since they were started in 1905.

1905—Won by Joe Forshaw, St. Louis.

1906-7-8—Won by Sidney Hatch, Chicago.

1908—Won by Joe Erlebach, St. Louis.

1910—Won by L. J. Phillvart, Chicago.

1911—Won by Sidney Hatch, Chicago.

1912—Won by Joe Erlebach, St. Louis.

1913—Won by W. J. Kennedy, Chicago.

This fellow Kennedy is an ex-athlete. He won the modified marathon for the M. A. C. a year ago when he resided here. However, there is a well-defined rumor that he has sold out to the trust and is laying bricks in Chicago.

But other races have been won by the Chicago contingent. Albert A. Corey, a Chicago man, won the "Bryan" mile run in 1905, while Hatch won the 10-mile race given by the Knights of Columbus in 1908.

There is a concerted effort being made this season to oust the trust. In the modified run of 11-6-10 miles, St. Louis has two formidable entrants in Irvin Biel and Joe Sautle, who have the stamina to go the full marathon route. They have trained hard for the coming race and should give the Chicago crowd a scare.

Then Erlebach may spring a surprise. Joe has not been at his best this season, but has trained hard for tomorrow's race and may be in at the killing. He's some runner if he's right.

Dr. Hassett expects an entry of 60 for the mile run. About 35 starters have been nominated to date.

OLIVE Tablets OIL the Bowels

A Physician's Substitute for Dangerous Calomel

When you feel that your liver and bowels need help take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, Substitute for Calomel. Calomel is effective, but dangerous—causing bad after-effects.

Olive Tablets are especially made to take the place of Calomel. Dr. Edwards for years has been Calomel's foe. He saw its dangers and its disadvantages in 17 years' practice treating patients for all kinds of liver and bowel complaints. In his efforts to do without Calomel he developed his now famous little olive-oil-colored tablets. Olive Tablets are mild but effective. Safe and sure. Pleasant to take but unfailing in results.

Olive Tablets oil the bowels and they tone up the liver at the same time. They are made from a rare combination of vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

If you want to regain that feeling of joyous buoyancy and clear thought take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They work like a vacation. 10c and 25c per box.

"Every Little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own."

State highway between St. Louis Kansas City is in very bad condition for automobile travel, according to a Minor of Kansas City, who arrived in St. Louis Friday. It took him days to make the run from Kansas City to St. Louis, he said.

The roads between St. Joseph and Kansas City, Fulton and New Florence are in "awful condition," said Minor. "We built up the roads in some places but through. The best automobile will be in danger of being battered to pieces in a trip from St. Louis Kansas City."

A Minor in his car were his son, Minor, his daughter, Mildred, Miss McBride and a young girl.

Waldo Briggs, her physician, decided that she would die if an effort made to remove her from the ambulance to the court room. So Judge Herman left the bench and went to ambulance to obtain Mrs. Whit signature to a new bond.

Lashly and Julius R. Nolte, prosecutor in the case, examined Whitney and declared her condition not seem desperate, in their opinion.

RAIN IN THE SOUTH HELPS COTTON BEAR

NEW YORK, May 16.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 2 points on May, but generally unchanged to 1 point lower, owing to reports of good rain in the Western and Central belts and showers in Eastern belt sections.

Realizing by recent sellers for over the week end furnished the market considerable support, but with the official forecasts pointing to further showers or rain, the market gradually eased off to a net loss of 5 or 6 points during the early trading.

Covering was active enough just before noon for the October contracts to steady the market and prices rallied to within 3 or 4 points of last night's closing figures later in the morning.

Business became less active as prices steadied and the market was dull at midday with traders waiting for the official weather details for a better view of the situation in the Eastern Belt.

The market worked 3 or 4 points above last night's close on July contracts, while the new crop recovered all of the early morning losses. The early afternoon swing in the futures was due to the official details to show any general rain in drouthy sections and scattered covering. The closing was steady.

Cotton spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 12c; middling gulf, 12.25c; sales, 1660 bales.

"TILLIE," he said, "I had a strange dream the other night. I dreamed that I started to say something to a certain pretty girl, and she stopped me. 'No, George!' she said; 'you mustn't tell me you love me—not yet, anyway! Wait till I weigh 133 pounds!'"
"One hundred and thirty-three pounds!" exclaimed the lovely maiden to whom he was telling his dream. "Why, George, that's exactly what I weigh!"

The Jarr Family

Clara Mudridge Smith
longs to go across the hills to Arcady.

By Roy L. M. Cardell

"O H, dear! I am so very unhappy!" whimpered Mrs. Clara Mudridge-Smith. She fumbled through her gold mesh handbag for her handkerchief, and, not finding it, marked time by dry sobbing as she looked around her on the floor of Mrs. Jarr's front room.

"If you're looking for your handkerchief, it's in your sleeve," said Mrs. Jarr, coldly.

"I can't remember a thing, I'm so nervous—so agitated! I'm all run down, and I should be taken abroad for my health. But my husband is a selfish, inconsiderate, tight-fisted, old wretch, and all the satisfaction he gives me is that, owing to business conditions, and the prospect of tariff changes and the opening of the Panama Canal—and such silly little things like those—he won't be able to go abroad this year."

"Well, that shouldn't prevent you from going," suggested Mrs. Jarr.

"Do you think I'm crying because he can't go?" asked the young matron, sharply. "But he says I can't go. Oh, why wasn't I born a simple beggar maid!"

"Humph!" sneered Mrs. Jarr. "You were born poor enough! But that's no disgrace. And you'd have been a poor old maid if that rich old man hadn't come along."

"Don't tell me! I am so unhappy!" murmured the visitor.

"You wanted a rich husband"—began Mrs. Jarr.

"Who doesn't?" asked the other. "But why couldn't he have been young and handsome and kind and poetic?"

"Well, Mr. Dinkston?" Mrs. Jarr interposed. "He is more or less all those things, except the wealthy part. Haven't you heard that Mrs. Dinkston has left him? Or, rather, has made him leave her?"

"Yes, did she? How cruel!" gasped

Mrs. Mudridge-Smith. "Why couldn't they have gone hand in hand across the hills to Arcady together?"

"Why couldn't you go hand in hand with your husband across the hills to Arcady?" asked Mrs. Jarr.

"Him? With the asthma and the rheumatism?" retorted the young matron. "We'd look nice going to Arcady with hot water bottles and flannel dresses and gowns and lithia tablets."

"Well, so with Mr. Dinkston then. He's detached at present," suggested Mrs. Jarr.

"I'm surprised at you, Mrs. Jarr!" cried the other. "You used to be the soul of propriety. And, besides that, Mr. Dinkston is always so shabby. And I despise him, anyway."

"I know, he's the only poetic vagabond I know of," said Mrs. Jarr. "How would Mr. Stryver strike you as a traveling companion across the hills to Arcady? I hear his wife is going to leave him."

"Gracious!" cried the visitor. "Is it spring moving in matrimonial circles?"

"I am a sympathetic friend," said Mrs. Jarr. "But I'd like to get a few visits from those of my acquaintances who do not regard me as a dumping ground for woe. Why don't you come to see me when you are happy? Why don't you come and take me out in the park in your automobile? How would you like it if I came to your house and wept all over the premises?"

Before Mrs. Mudridge-Smith could answer the bell rang and Mrs. Gratch-Dinkston tottered in. Mrs. Mudridge-Smith regarded her askance. She regarded the last comer as being presumptuous in having a husband in her name and marital trouble also.

A TRUE SPORTING FEELING.

J. W. MACKELDEN was a commercial traveler before he became a trade journalist and tells this experience of a drummer:

"While waiting for a train in Texas, I watched a game of checkers in a customer's store. Not being well posted in local ethics, I called the merchant's attention to some possible customers who had entered."

"Sh-sh," answered the storekeeper. "Keep quiet and they will go out!"

LAST time I saw Squallop he was house hunting.

"That must have been some time ago, or else very recently. Last time I saw him he was wife hunting; he had just got his divorce."

She always called her by her first husband's name on such occasions as Mrs. Dinkston was given the gate.

"Oh, I am so unhappy!" moaned Mrs. Jarr.

"Please, mum," said Gertrude, looking in. "Mrs. Stryver is at the door. But she says she can't come in if you have company, as her grief is more than she can bear."

"It's more than I can bear, too," said Mrs. Jarr. "But tell her to come in and join the Tell-it-to-the-Neighbors Club!"

Correcting a Husband.

A COLORED woman went to the pastor of her church the other day to complain of the conduct of her husband, who, she said, was a low down, worthless, trifling fellow. After listening to the long recital of the delinquencies of her neglectful spouse and her efforts to correct them the minister said: "Have you ever tried heaping coals of fire upon his head?"

"No," was the reply, "but I done tried hot water."—Metropolitan Magazine.
